New North American Order A Win Win Strategy For Us Mexico Trade:

The New North American Order Clyde V. Prestowitz, Robert B. Cohen, 1991-10-30 In this report the Economic Strategy Institute explains how to structure a North American Free Trade Agreement to strengthen the U S economy and bolster the competitiveness of an increasingly integrated North American economy The report begins with a description of U S and Mexican interests in the FTA and an analysis of how they converge and diverge It then details the assumptions about the Mexican economy and about the economic future of North America that have been driving U S policy Following a critique of these assumptions the study paints a detailed portrait of the Mexican economy as it is not as many Americans wish it to be The economic impact of the FTA being sought by the administration is gauged by describing recent quantitative and qualitative trends in U S Mexico trade discussing the body of econometric studies published to date on the FTA and presenting the Institute s own projections which are based on analyses not only of trade flows but of investment flows and Mexican industrial policies Finally the report identifies a framework for U S Mexico relations likely to strengthen the U S economy It outlines the criteria that a successful agreement has to meet and presents detailed recommendations on how to achieve these goals in areas ranging from trade and investment to energy and the environment U.S. Employment Effects of a North American Free Trade Agreement Gregory K. Schoepfle, 1992 North American Free Trade Agreements DIANE Publishing Company, 1994-06 In 2 parts The first part briefly summarizes the major provisions of the Agreement and discusses their broad effects on the economy the environment labor and immigration The second part organized as a sourcebook gives more detail on specific provisions of the agreement It examines the objectives of the negotiators from each country the major components of the Agreement and the unresolved issues Charts and tables North American Free Trade Agreement: Assessment of Major Issues.
