New Models In Geography Richard Peet, Nigel Thrift, 2013-10-11 First published in 1989 It seems such a long time ago another age yet it is a mere twenty odd years since the original Models in Geography was published It is an even shorter time since the first tentative steps were taken towards an alternative formulation of what might constitute a geographical perspective within the social sciences What came to be called the political economy perspective has progressed with remarkable speed and energy to generate its own framework of conceptualization and analysis its own questions and debates The papers in these two volumes are witness to the richness and range of the work which has developed over this relatively short period within the political economy approach Moreover from being a debate within an institutionally defined discipline of geography to introducing into that discipline ideas and discussions from the wider fields of philosophy and social science and the humanities more generally it has now flowered into a consistent part of enquiries that span the entire realm of social studies

Writing the Rural Professor Paul J Cloke, Professor Marcus A Doel, Dr David Matless, PhD, Professor Nigel Thrift, Dr Martin Phillips, 1994-07-28 This book arises out of an ESRC project devoted to an examination of the economic social and cultural impacts of the service class on rural areas The research was an attempt to document these impacts through close empirical work in a set of three rural communities but something happened on the way The authors found that the rural became a real sticking point Respondents used it in different ways as a bludgeon as a badge as a barometer to signify many different things security identity community domesticity gender sexuality ethnicity nearly always by drawing on many different sources the media the landscape friends and kin animals It became abundantly clear that the rural whatever chameleon form it took was a prime and deeply felt determinant of the actions of many respondents Yet it was also clear that to the authors they possessed no theoretical framework that could allow them to negotiate the rural to deconstruct its diverse nature as a category Rather each of the extended essays in the book is an attempt by each author to draw out one aspect of the rural by drawing on different traditions in social and cultural theory New Models in Geography Richard Peet,1989 America's
