Big House on the Prairie John M. Eason, 2017-03-06 For the past fifty years America has been extraordinarily busy building prisons Since 1970 we have tripled the total number of facilities adding more than 1 200 new prisons to the landscape This building boom has taken place across the country but is largely concentrated in rural southern towns In 2007 John M Eason moved his family to Forrest City Arkansas in search of answers to key questions about this trend Why is America building so many prisons Why now And why in rural areas Eason quickly learned that rural demand for prisons is complicated Towns like Forrest City choose to build prisons not simply in hopes of landing jobs or economic wellbeing but also to protect and improve their reputations For some rural leaders fostering a prison in their town is a means of achieving order in a rapidly changing world Taking us into the decision making meetings and tracking the impact of prisons on economic development poverty and race Eason demonstrates how groups of elite whites and black leaders share power Situating prisons within dynamic shifts that rural economies are undergoing and showing how racially diverse communities lobby for prison construction Big House on the Prairie is a remarkable glimpse into the ways a prison economy takes shape and operates

Garbage Wars David Naguib Pellow, 2004-09-17 A study of the struggle for environmental justice focusing on conflicts over solid waste and pollution in Chicago In Garbage Wars the sociologist David Pellow describes the politics of garbage in Chicago He shows how garbage affects residents in vulnerable communities and poses health risks to those who dispose of it He follows the trash the pollution the hazards and the people who encountered them in the period 1880 2000 What unfolds is a tug of war among social movements government and industry over how we manage our waste who benefits and who pays the costs Studies demonstrate that minority and low income communities bear a disproportionate burden of environmental hazards Pellow analyzes how and why environmental inequalities are created He also explains how class and racial politics have influenced the waste industry throughout the history of Chicago and the United States After examining the roles of social movements and workers in defining resisting and shaping garbage disposal in the United States he concludes that some environmental groups and people of color have actually contributed to environmental inequality By highlighting conflicts over waste dumping incineration landfills and recycling Pellow provides a historical view of the garbage industry throughout the life cycle of waste Although his focus is on Chicago he places the trends and conflicts in a broader context describing how communities throughout the United States have resisted the waste industry's efforts to locate hazardous facilities in their backyards The book closes with suggestions for how communities can work more effectively for environmental justice and safe sustainable waste management
