Mirror of Morality Julia K. Murray, 2007-01-31. Mirror of Morality takes an interdisciplinary look at an important form of pictorial art produced during two millennia of Chinese imperial rule. Ideas about individual morality and state ideology were based on the ancient teachings of Confucius with modifications by later interpreters and government institutions. Throughout the imperial period, members of the elite made sponsored and inscribed or used illustrations of themes taken from history, literature, and recent events to promote desired conduct among various social groups. This dimension of Chinese art history has never before been broadly covered or investigated in historical context. The first half of the study examines the nature of narrative illustration in China and traces the evolution of its functions, conventions, and rhetorical strategies from the second century BCE through the eleventh century. Under the stimulus of Buddhism, sophisticated techniques developed for representing stories in visual form. While tracing changes in the social functions and cultural positions of narrative illustration, the second half of the book argues that narrative illustration continued to play a vital role in elite visual culture.

KidWorld the Role Playing Game, The Tower of Myriad Mirrors Tung Yueh, Yueh Tung, 2000-01-01. China's most outrageous character, the magical Monkey who battles a hundred monsters, returns to the fray in this seventeenth-century sequel to the Buddhist novel Journey to the West. In The Tower of Myriad Mirrors, he defends his claim to enlightenment against a villain who induces hallucinations that take Monkey into the past, to heaven and hell, and even through a sex change. The villain turns out to be the personification of his own desires, aroused by his penetration of a female adversary's body in Journey to the West. The Tower of Myriad Mirrors is the only novel of Tung Yeh. 1620-1686, a monk and Confucian scholar, Tung picks up the slapstick of the original tale and overlays it with Buddhist theory and bitter satire of the Ming government's capitulation to the Manchus. After a nod to Journey's storyteller format Tung carries Monkey's quest into an evocation of shifting psychological states rarely found in premodern fiction. An important though relatively unknown link in the development of the Chinese novel and a window into late Ming intellectual history. The Tower of Myriad Mirrors further rewards by being a wonderful read. The Swedish

Mirror Joseph Geary, 2004. Curator of the Modern Art Museum in New York. Ellen Lindz is troubled by the appearance of a stranger. An old man with an innocent question. He is curious about the dimensions of a painting. The last major work by the martyr suicide Franklin Koenig before his spectacular self-immolation in 1958. MIRROR only recently showed up in New York where it sold for USD23 million, the highest price ever paid for a piece of post-war art. The seller Linda Carey was Koenig's lover in his last tortured months. The buyer was the Modern Art Museum. Prompted by the stranger's doubts, Ellen asks questions of her own and discovers a doctored catalogue which puts the painting's authenticity in doubt and her own reputation on the line. Determined to clear her name, Ellen sets out to uncover the truth about MIRROR. Only one person will have the answers. MIRROR sale. Ellen makes a shocking discovery. What is the truth behind the layers of lies? Who is the stranger asking questions? Why did Koenig set fire to himself and most of his work all those years ago? The answers lie in the past in the cultural cold war of 1950s America and a secret that could blow apart the multi-billion dollar art market. A secret that someone will kill to keep. American Stationer and Office Manager, 1917
