Modern Mongolian A Transformational Syntax:

Modern Mongolian Robert I. Binnick, Modern Mongolian Robert I. Binnick, 1979 Corrigenda and Marginalia to Modern Mongolian, a Transformational Syntax Lucia Hammar, Robert I. Binnick, 1981 Modern Mongolian Robert I. Binnick, 1979 Mongolian Juha A. Janhunen, 2012 Mongolian is the principal language spoken by some five million ethnic Mongols living in Outer and Inner Mongolia as well as in adjacent parts of Russia and China The spoken language is divided into a number of mutually intelligible dialects while for writing two separate written languages are used Cyrillic Khalkha in Outer Mongolia the Republic of Mongolia and Written Mongol in Inner Mongolia P R China In this grammatical description the focus is on the standard varieties of the spoken language as used in broadcasting education and everyday casual speech The dialectology of the language and its background as a member of the Mongolic language family are also discussed Mongolian is an agglutinating language with a well developed suffixal morphology In the areal framework the language is a typical member of the trans Eurasian Ural Altaic complex with features such as vowel harmony verb final sentence structure and complex chains of non finite verbal phrases A Grammar of Mangghuer Keith W. Slater, 2005-12-20 This book is a grammar of Mangghuer a Mongolic language spoken by approximately 25 000 people in China s northwestern Qinghai Province Mangghuer is virtually unknown outside China and no grammar of Mangghuer has ever been published in any language The book s primary importance is thus as a systematic grammatical description of a little known language The book also makes a significant contribution to comparative Mongolic studies In addition to the synchronic description of Mangghuer extensive comparison with other Mongolic languages is included demonstrating the genetic relationship of Mangghuer within that family In the course of describing Mangghuer linguistic structures the book also examines issues of interest to linguistic typologists Mongolian Studies, 1995 The Mongolic Languages Juha Janhunen, 2006-01-27 Once the rulers of the largest land empire that has ever existed on earth the historical Mongols of Chinggis Khan left a linguistic heritage which today survives in the form of more than a dozen different languages collectively termed Mongolic For general linguistic theory the Mongolic languages offer interesting insights to problems of areal typology and structural change An understanding of the Mongolic language family is also a prerequisite for the study of Mongolian and Central Eurasian history and culture This volume is the first comprehensive treatment of the Mongolic languages in English written by an international team of specialists Differential Case Marking in Mongolian Dolgor Guntsetseg, 2016-03-31 Mongolian is an ordinary DOM Differential Object Marking language the accusative case does not always occur on direct objects This book investigates the phenomenon starting from the research question of how the Mongolian pattern is influenced by factors that cross linguistically trigger DOM such as referentiality animacy and topicality It shows that looking at any of these factors on its own is not sufficient but rather that DOM emerges from a complicated interaction of these factors Apart from DOM Mongolian also exhibits a specific type of Differential Subject Marking DSM in which the subjects of embedded clauses

including adverbial clauses occur with the accusative case This is the second issue investigated in the study In addition to the features already mentioned sentence structure turns out to be relevant here More specifically the adjacent occurrence of main and embedded subjects is identified as a crucial factor for triggering DSM Both observations about DOM and DSM in Mongolian can be brought together in the generalization that the accusative case in Mongolian is used to distinguish between two arguments not only within a clause but also across the clause boundaries The book provides a detailed introduction into relevant components of Mongolian grammar and its findings are supported by extensive experimental studies with a large number of native speakers in an attempt to ensure a high quality of linguistic evidence

Nominalizations Maria Koptjevskaja-Tamm, 2002-09-11 Based on extensive and diverse material from 70 languages and covering a range of previously undiscussed problems this book provides a thorough analysis of how nominalization types interact with other structural features It focuses on action nominal constructions and in particular the comparison of their syntactic structure with that of finite clauses and of other noun phrases a problem which has claimed much attention in current syntactic theories Supported by rich empirical material and clearly illustrated with examples from all the sample languages the book provides a detailed and consistent basis for constructing a typology of derived constructions and for presenting cross linguistic comparisons Mongolia Judith Nordby, 1993 Syntax of Some Nominal Constructions in Korean Sun Woo Lee, 1983 Corrigenda and Marginalia to Modern Mongolian Lucia B. Hammar, 1981 Mongolia and the Mongols Western Washington University, Henry G. Schwarz, 1992 Working Papers, 1991 Subject Catalog Library of Congress, 1979 Descriptive and Psycholinguistic Aspects of Adverbial Subordinate Clauses Jürgen Handke, 1984 Subject Catalog, 1979 Library of Congress, 1979 MIT Working Papers in Linguistics, 2001 The Journal of Asian Studies, 1981 An essential resource for those interested in Asia Recognized as the leading publication in its field It features articles on the history arts social sciences and contemporary issues of East South and Southeast Asia as well as a large book review section
