New Zealand's Forests:

Trade Policy, Processing and New Zealand Forestry John Gilbert, 2020-11-26 This title was first published in 2000 Examines core issues with respect to the effect of export restrictions the impact on processing and welfare the consequences of foreign ownership of the resource and the possibility of utilizing export restrictions as a retaliatory strategy against escalating tariff structures It also examines the impact of liberalization of processed good markets The book employs a combination of formal general equilibrium modelling and counterfactual simulation using computable general equilibrium CGE techniques with the New Zealand forestry industry used as a case study throughout The book makes a contribution to the literature in this field by incorporating foreign ownership into an extensive formal analysis of processing incentives developing a new CGE model of the New Zealand economy utilizing this model to evaluate the costs of export restrictions and utilizing the GTAP to provide insights into the possible effect of the APEC Early Voluntary Sector Liberalization strategy

The Forest Flora of New Zealand Thomas Kirk, 1889 A separate account is given of each species the head line stating the systematic name the Native name or in some cases a common name The first portion of the text contains historical information connected with the plant an account of the dimensions habit of growth c and a more or less detailed statement of the structure of the flower and fruit this is followed by a concise account of its properties and uses the mode of working the forest conversion commercial value etc Page v A Living New Zealand Forest Bob Brockie, 1992 Based on the results of a study of the Orongorongo Valley carried out by a team of biologists from the Ecology Division of the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research from 1966 to 1990 to give a better understanding of the links interactions and balances or imbalances between the forest plants and animals Pref

The Ecology and Biogeography of Nothofagus Forests Thomas T. Veblen, Robert S. Hill, Jennifer Read, 1996-01-01 Ecologists and biogeographers have been intrigued for a long time by the striking similarity of the vegetation and flora of southern temperate zone regions separated by large oceans These scientists have been particularly interested in the occurrence in these regions of Nothofagus southern beeches This book which focuses on the distribution history and ecology of the genus Nothofagus provides a key to understanding the historical plant geography and modern vegetation patterns of the southern hemisphere The book begins with a discussion of the long term and broad scale patterns of origin and differentiation in the genus Next each major Nothofagus biome is discussed first in a chapter that considers contemporary ecological patterns and then in a chapter that focuses on the history and paleoecology of the region Authorities in the field deal with the temperate zone of the southwest Pacific region New Zealand and Australia the adjacent tropical zone of the southwest Pacific New Guinea and New Caledonia and South America ranging from the Mediterranean type climate region of central Chile to the subantarctic latitudes of Tierra del Fuego New Zealand's Forests Harriet Fleet, 1984 The New Zealand Journal of Forestry, 1936 Professional Paper - New Zealand State Forest Service New Zealand. Forest Ecosystem Management and Timber Production Russell Warman, 2018-12-07 Timber sourcing is shifting from extraction from natural forests to forms of cultivation that are increasingly agricultural in nature This book takes a multidisciplinary approach to examine the socio political biophysical and discursive dimensions of this divergence of wood production from forests This analysis challenges the historical integration of wood production and forest ecosystem management exemplified by the institutions of forestry with their inherent wood forest connection This has significant implications for how wood and forest socio ecological systems confront change and challenge ideas about how to achieve sustainability Historically the institutions of stewardship forestry were founded on ideals of sustainable systems in long term equilibrium However these occur within rapidly evolving social and technological contexts that constantly challenge the maintenance of any equilibrium This creates considerable tension within wood and forest socio ecological systems and their institutions and governance Moving beyond adaptation to transformation however requires a willingness to consider post forestry conditions such as integration of emerging wood cultivation systems into agricultural and landscape approaches and increasing management of extensive forest ecosystems for non wood values in the absence of wood production This book includes four case studies a global modelling of shifts in wood production and three national case studies Australia Indonesia and New Zealand each analysing shifts in resilience in wood and forest socio ecological systems using a different disciplinary approach This book will be of interest to advanced students researchers and professionals in forestry land use conservation rural studies and geography Forest Development in Cold Climates John Alden, J. Louise Mastrantonio, Søren

Ødum, 2013-06-29 As forests decline in temperate and tropical climates highly developed countries and those striving for greater economic and social benefits are beginning to utilize marginal forests of high latitude and mountainous regions for resources to satisfy human needs The benefits of marginal forests range from purely aesthetic to providing resources for producing many goods and services demanded by a growing world population Increased demands for forest resources and amenities and recent warming of high latitude climates have generated interest in reforestation and afforestation of marginal habitats in cold regions Afforestation of treeless landscapes improves the environment for human habitation and provides for land use and economic prosperity Trees are frequently planted in cold climates to rehabilitate denuded sites for the amenity of homes and villages and for wind shelter recreation agroforestry and industrial uses In addition forests in cold climates reduce the albedo of the earth s surface in winter and in summer they are small but significant long lived sinks for atmospheric carbon dioxide Finally growth and reproductive success of forests at their geographic limits are sensitive indices of climatic change As efforts to adapt forests to cold climates increase however new afforestation problems arise and old ones intensify Austral northern and altitudinal tree limits are determined by many different factors Current hypotheses for high latitude tree limits are based on low growing season temperatures that inhibit plant development and reproduction
