Mister Smith:

The Star Creek Papers Horace Mann Bond, 2011-03-15 The Star Creek Papers is the never before published account of the complex realities of race relations in the rural South in the 1930s. When Horace and Julia Bond moved to Louisiana in 1934 they entered a world where the legacy of slavery was miscegenation, lingering paternalism, and deadly racism. The Bonds were a young, well-educated and idealistic African American couple working for the Rosenwald Fund, a trust established by a northern philanthropist to build schools in rural areas. They were part of the Explorer Project sent to investigate the progress of the school in the Star Creek district of Washington Parish. Their report, which decried the teachers' lack of experience, the poor quality of the coursework, and the students' chronic absenteeism, was based on their private journal, The Star Creek Diary, a shrewdly observed, sharply etched and affectionate portrait of a rural black community.

Horace Bond was moved to write a second document, Forty Acres and a Mule, a history of a black farming family after Jerome Wilson was lynched in 1935. The Wilsons were thrifty landowners whom Bond knew and respected; he intended to turn their story into a book but the chronicle remained unfinished at his death. These important primary documents were rediscovered by civil rights scholar Adam Fairclough, who edited them with Julia Bond's support.

The Clarke County Democrats Phil Brady, 2013-08-20 It is 1921, a year after the Clarke County Democrats stole a bus that would change everything for the semi-professional baseball team of Thomasville, Alabama. With their owner and manager, Win Harrigan, behind the wheel, the Democrats head out on the road where they hope to achieve financial success. As the team of unlikely players follows a schedule of eight away games, it soon becomes evident that it is going to take more than just brains and ingenuity to create a winning record for the folks back in Thomasville that include young, newlyweds, Leonard and Frances Cassity. When tragedy strikes the Cassitys, Leonard is eventually recruited to play for the Democrats as he attempts to create a better life for his new bride. But when his desire to please Frances leads him to carry out an unthinkable act, Leonard is about to discover that there are consequences for every choice in life. The Clarke County Democrats shares the compelling tale of a young recruit's journey through tragedies and challenges during 1920s America after he decides to play for an Alabama baseball team.

I, Zombie Al Ewing, 2008-06-15 My name is John Doe. I've been dead for ten years. I have no heartbeat, no breath, no smell, just cold, clammy flesh animated by something I don't understand. So I sell my dead flesh to the highest bidder. If the price is right, I'll kill for you, steal for you, or save your life for you. There's no mystery you can't hire me to solve, apart from this one. The bent copper torn apart in his flat by something not quite human. The hidden rooms underneath the Tower of London. The hollow-eyed boxer Morse and strange, strange Mr. Smith with his head full of the future. And the secret they found. The secret of who I am. A secret so big and black and terrible that it changed everything we thought we knew about existence. And now I'm the only person who can stop the end of all life on this planet. I, Zombie

Don't Stop Thinking About the Music Benjamin S. Schoening, Eric T. Kasper, 2011-12-16 In this insightful, erudite history of presidential campaign music, musicologist

Benjamin Schoening and political scientist Eric Kasper explain how politicians use music in American presidential campaigns to convey a range of political messages From Follow Washington to I Like Ike to I Got a Crush on Obama they describe the ways that song use by and for presidential candidates has evolved including the addition of lyrics to familiar songs the current trend of using existing popular music to connect with voters and the rapid change of music s relationship to presidential campaigns due to Internet sites like YouTube JibJab and Facebook Readers are ultimately treated to an entertaining account of American political development through popular music and the complex two way relationship between music and presidential campaigns Life and Times of the Right Honourable William Henry Smith Herbert Maxwell,1893
