Newborn Intensive Care Jeanette Zaichkin,1996 Neonatal Intensive Care Units (NICUs) Francesco Martines,2017
From World Health Organization data the prevalence of hearing impairment among infants varies between 0.5 and 3.0 cases per thousand but in children hospitalized in the Newborn Intensive Care Unit NICU and in those with other risk factors i.e. anatomically small for gestational age craniofacial abnormalities intrauterine infections family history of hearing loss ototoxic drugs mechanical ventilation etc the prevalence is 10-20 times greater Newborn Intensive Care Unit NICU can be defined as an intensive care unit for sick newborns who need specialized treatment NICU combines equipment and advanced technology with medical staff specially trained in newborn care The Joint Committee on Infants Hearing JCIH identified many risk factors in NICU infants like prolonged mechanical ventilation asphyxia low birth weight and ototoxic medication and so it also considers intensive care as a whole a risk factor The present book focuses its attention on this hearing loss risk factor starting from risk factors and screening strategies highlighting the various neonatal levels of care focusing on the treatment of infants with neural tube defects and the future motor development of premature babies This should be done until caregivers can get the attention of drug therapies used in the NICU

Mixed Blessings Jeanne Guillemin,Lynda Lytle Holmstrom,1986 The main idea behind the first efforts to treat newborn patients was to create a womb like environment that would allow sick infants suffering from the complications of premature birth to grow The recent development of newborn intensive care presents a challenging case for analyzing the reinvention of acute care medicine for this new population of infant patients

Infants in Crisis Glenn Affleck,Howard Tennen,Jonelle Rowe,2012-12-06 The emotional impact of having a newborn hospitalized in an intensive care unit is immense. The parents' perceptions of the child's fragility and of their role in the vulnerable child's life represent important facts of the crisis in which the infant and the parents are involved. Such early stress marks the child's later development which may include chronic ailments and learning disabilities. This book explores a whole spectrum of psychological questions raised by the birth of medically fragile infants from the parents' ability to restore a sense of meaning and mastery in the face of the profound challenges confronting them to the importance of social support and coping strategies and finally to the crisis of newborn intensive care in the context of the marital relationship.

Neonatal Intensive Care Units (NICUs) Francesco Martines, 2017. From World Health Organization data the prevalence of hearing impairment among infants varies between 0.5 and 3.0 cases per thousand but in children hospitalised in the Newborn Intensive Care Unit (NICU) and in those with other risk factors ie anatomically small for gestational age, craniofacial abnormalities, intrauterine infections, family history of hearing loss, ototoxic drugs, mechanical ventilation etc the prevalence is 10-20 times greater. Newborn Intensive Care Unit (NICU) can be defined as an intensive care unit for sick newborns who need specialised treatment. NICU combines equipment and advanced technology with medical staff specially trained in newborn care. The Joint Committee on Infants Hearing (JCIH) identified many risk factors in NICU infants like prolonged mechanical ventilation, asphyxia, low birth weight and ototoxic medication and so it also considers intensive care as a whole a risk factor. The present book focuses its attention on this hearing loss risk factor starting from risk factors and screening strategies highlighting the various neonatal levels of care focusing on the treatment of infants with neural tube defects and the future motor development of premature babies This should be done until caregivers can get the attention of drug therapies used in the NICU

Nurturing the Premature Infant

Edward Goldson,1999-04-29 As more premature infants survive the immediate neonatal period and require prolonged periods of hospitalization researchers in fetal development and infancy have begun to reassess the strategies for their care In the past the focus of neonatal intensive care was to sustain life with little attention to the quality and implications of survival Today however researchers and clinicians are seeking to enhance the development of these small infants by ameliorating the effects of extreme prematurity and the associated medical and surgical complications This book reports the work of leading researchers who have begun to use a variety of developmental interventions in the management of small infants in neonatal intensive care units

Neonatal Intensive Care Elizabeth Sanders,2016-12 Newborn infants including term infants who are admitted to the neonatal intensive care unit NICU usually have various perinatal unfavorable conditions or problems Some of these problems may directly or indirectly affect or even damage the immature brain including the brainstem In this book Chapter One provides new research on the functional impairment in the auditory brainstem in term infants in the NICU Chapter Two discusses practices to reduce infant transfusions Chapter Three reviews parents perspectives on the hospitalization of preterm infants in NICU
