Wolf,2002 Group Counseling and Group Psychotherapy George Michael Gazda,Earl J. Ginter,Arthur M. Horne,2001 This new book presents current thinking on the subject of group counseling and group psychotherapy This well known and respected author team have included both group counseling and group therapy theory and application in the same text to accommodate future practitioners who will work in educational and mental health institutions as well as those who will enter private practice depending upon their training and future work setting. Unlike current competing texts that focus on group work in either counseling or psychotherapy or that provide numerous chapter length summaries of prevailing group models this text isolates the three basic theoretical models extant and presents a comprehensive description of the theory followed by a separate chapter on application. The three basic theoretical models of Humanistic, Existential, Cognitive Behavioral and Psychodynamic are supplemented by an eclectic Developmental model of the senior author. Two additional chapters are devoted to the most rapidly growing group interventions skills training and self help mutual support groups. The second dominant feature of the text deals with foundations of group counseling and group therapy including origins and historical development, definitions, group dynamics, diversity issues, research, support and ethical professional and legal issues. Also included are appendices with training standards, ethical standards and diversity guidelines.

Children and Animals Frank R. Ascione, 2005. Animal abuse has been an acknowledged problem for centuries but only within the past few decades has scientific research provided evidence that the maltreatment of animals often overlaps with violence toward people. The perpetrators of such inhumane treatment are often children and adolescents. This book presents current wisdom about the relationship between the maltreatment of animals and violence directed toward other human beings. The author, a noted expert in these areas, writes in a style and presents the findings in a language that will be understandable to parents and teachers.

No Disposable Kids Larry K. Brendtro, Arlin E. Ness, Martin Mitchell, Starr Commonwealth, 2001. Bibliographic Index, 2001. Bibliographic Guide to Education, 2001 lists publications cataloged by Teachers College Columbia University supplemented by The Research Libraries of The New York Public Library.

Total Learning Joanne Hendrick, Patricia Weissman, 2007. For a course covering Early Childhood Curriculum. This text is based on primarily a constructivist philosophy and advocates designing curriculum that uses children's emerging interests within a flexible and thoughtful teacher guided plan. The developmental approach emphasizes that learning should be integrated. The text addresses curriculum through discussion of the five selves: physical, emotional, social, creative and cognitive. The authors emphasize play, cross cultural sensitivity and encouraging competence in young children. The clear writing and practical examples ensure easy reading. The concise writing style, relevant examples and practical suggestions are hallmarks of this text. Present day emergent curriculum programs are explored in new Emergent Curriculum in Action features. Well developed tables organize pertinent information. The excellent theoretical base and conceptual framework for curriculum provide understanding that will stay with students forever. The text encourages students to respond to the needs of children but also explains how to identify goals and objectives, incorporate them into curriculum that meets individual needs and use developmentally appropriate assessment methods.
