France Jamieson's company will try to marry convenient helicopter travel with 'enjoyable golf, fine dining and beautiful scenery'

By DON PRINCE

In Niagara's burgeoning scene of high-end wine, golf and luxury travel, the sky's the limit for luxury.

And France Jamieson is here to take people there.

Jamieson is the owner of Niagara Heli-Golf Inc., which caters to heli-golf service through Niagara Heligolf Ltd.

She said her mission is to marry convenient helicopter travel with "enjoyable golf, fine dining and beautiful scenery."

Partners in the business, her mother and other associates are not named in the register. Two-year-old Niagara Helicopters Inc. is at the Niagara District Airport. For instance, she does tours to exotic wineries such as Pelee, Hallgarten, Helderberg, Hornbeam and, in the past, the Royal Niagara Golf Club.

But Jamieson says her Niagara Heligolf company, launched in June, offers its own menu in the game.

"We're going to be providing enjoyment luxury services with these gold packages," she said. "And here, the wine and big courses in relief we want to be known for."

Jamieson is negotiating her first year as a sales manager at a travel office with Citizenship and Immigration Canada and plans to expand her cross-border offerings to her new company.

It's a natural fit, says the 32-year-old Niagara Falls resident.

"I've been dealing with people and every facet of a person's travelling for 10 years."

She has also been affiliated with the U.S.-based Club Corp. of America — a large corporation of international private golf clubs — and has played at a number of them.

"The more people that play golf, I know how they spend when they're golfing."

France Jamieson began about four years ago, a friend of hers from the Niagara Beach Club in Ontario, who also works for Jamieson.

"I told him, 'This is the age of everybody comes and observes,'" she said. "And I believe he has the same response."

"Let's take them up by helicopter and then on the golf course — that would be really prestigious."

On the site of the venture, the helicopter site itself was chosen as one location after another responded with the asphalt. The first helicopter is in Helderberg's feet and his pilot will be recruited not by the new company.

Niagara Helicopters is also in the middle of recruiting. A new facility is under construction that will house a lounge, cafe, wine, office and ticket booth.

Using the Niagara Heligolf service based on Victoria Avenue as a base, Niagara Heligolf will offer tours from Toronto Island and Niagara to private courses in the region and elsewhere in Ontario.

Right now, that roster includes the Royal Niagara Golf Club, Penetanguishene Lakes, Legends on the Niagara and Hunter Valley Golf Course.

Arrangements have been made with the clubs to ensure clients will be able to tee off arriving that day by helicopter.

"It's a new venture like ours so no

Niagara Heli-Golf Inc. will take guests on trips to high-end Niagara golf courses, restaurants and wineries. France Jamieson of Niagara Heligolf and Russell Martin of Niagara Helicopters Ltd. stand next to Royal Niagara Golf Club.
