

The poster features a collage of images. At the top, a man's face is framed by a metal keyhole. Below it, the title 'THE LOSERS' is written in large, bold, black letters. The letter 'T' is enclosed in an oval containing the word 'THE'. The background is a warm, orange-yellow gradient. In the bottom half, several characters are shown in various poses: a man on the left holding a gun, a woman in the center holding a gun, and another man on the right holding a gun. A palm tree is visible on the right side. The overall composition is dynamic and action-oriented.

Design by Competition Jack L. Nasar, 1999-02-28 What meanings do buildings and places convey to the people who use and visit them Too often design competitions and signature architecture result in costly eyesores that do not work How can sponsors and clients get more meaningful results In answer to these questions Dr Nasar supported by riveting studies of competitions and Peter Eisenman's competition winning design for the Wexner Center at the Ohio State University suggests the use of pre jury evaluation PJE He shows the potential value of this approach as well as visual quality programming for many kinds of environmental design for which the client wants to convey certain desirable meanings The studies from those specific to the Wexner Center to those covering the scope of history point to an alternative method for shaping the visual form of buildings places and cities The Fortune Strategy , Losers' Consent Christopher Anderson, 2005-01-13

Democratic elections are designed to create unequal outcomes for some to win others have to lose This book examines the consequences of this inequality for the legitimacy of democratic political institutions and systems Using survey data collected in democracies around the globe the authors argue that losing generates ambivalent attitudes towards political authorities Because the efficacy and ultimately the survival of democratic regimes can be seriously threatened if the losers do not consent to their loss the central themes of this book focus on losing how losers respond to their loss and how institutions shape losing While there tends to be a gap in support for the political system between winners and losers it is not ubiquitous The book paints a picture of losers' consent that portrays losers as political actors whose experience and whose incentives to accept defeat are shaped both by who they are as individuals as well as the political environment in which loss is given meaning Given that the winner loser gap in legitimacy is a persistent feature of democratic politics the findings presented in this book contain crucial implications for our understanding of the functioning and stability of democracies

Women as Candidates in American Politics Susan J. Carroll, 1994-05-22 In this second edition Susan Carroll updates her pioneering study of women candidates and their campaigns in the aftermath of the Year of the Woman Although in many regards the political climate has become vastly more favorable for female candidates opportunities are still limited by the political structure Carroll examines a number of possible reforms and actual developments which may eventually mean larger numbers of women being elected to public office Department of Defense authorization for appropriations for fiscal years 1988 and 1989 United States. Redistricting and Representation Thomas Brunell, 2010-04-02 Pundits have observed that if so many incumbents are returned to Congress to each election by such wide margins perhaps we should look for ways to increase competitiveness a centerpiece to the American way of life through redistricting Do competitive elections increase voter satisfaction How does voting for a losing candidate affect voters' attitudes toward government The not so surprising conclusion is that losing voters are less satisfied with Congress and their Representative but the implications for the way in which we draw congressional and state legislative districts are less straightforward Redistricting and Representation argues that competition in general elections is not the sine qua non of healthy democracy and that it in fact contributes to the low levels of approval of Congress and its members Brunell makes the case for a radical departure from traditional approaches to redistricting arguing that we need to pack districts with as many like minded partisans as possible maximizing the number of winning voters not losers
