labor throughout India's dairy production continuum to obscure such violence. Ultimately Narayanan traces how the unraveling of human domination and exploitation of farmed animals is integral to progressive multispecies democratic politics speculating on the real possibility of a post dairy society based on vegan agricultural policies for livelihoods and food security.

The Global Benefits of Eating Less Meat, 2004 The Global Food Economy Tony Weis, 2008-12-08

The Global Food Economy examines the human and ecological cost of what we eat. The current food economy is characterized by immense contradictions. Surplus food mountains, bountiful supermarkets and rising levels of obesity stand in stark contrast to widespread hunger and malnutrition. Transnational companies dominate the market in food and benefit from subsidies whilst farmers in developing countries remain impoverished. Food miles mounting toxicity and the ecological hoofprint of livestock mean that the global food economy rests on increasingly shaky environmental foundations. This book looks at how such a system came about and how it is being enforced by the WTO. Ultimately Weis considers how we can find a way of building socially just, ecologically rational and humane food economies.

BMJ, 2000 International Agricultural Development, 1998 Proceedings of the International Grassland Conference, 2001 Slaughterhouse Blues Donald D. Stull, Michael J. Broadway, 2004

SLAUGHTERHOUSE BLUES: THE MEAT AND POULTRY INDUSTRY IN NORTH AMERICA draws on more than 15 years of research by the authors, a cultural anthropologist and a social geographer, to present a detailed look at the meat and poultry industry in the United States and Canada. Following chapters on today's beef, poultry and pork industries, SLAUGHTERHOUSE BLUES examines industry impacts on workers and on the communities that host its plants. The book details the authors' efforts to help communities plan for and mitigate the negative consequences of meat and poultry plants as well as community opposition to confined animal feeding operations. The book concludes by exploring alternatives to North America's model of industrialized meat production.

Choice, 2005 Agriculture and Human Values, 1984 BBC Wildlife, 1999 Empire of Knowledge Vinay Lal, 2002-10-20

During the media frenzy over the Millennium celebrations, there was hardly any mention of the fact that for the majority of the world, there was no Millennium at all. This linear understanding of time is a specifically Western and Christian concept. This is just one of many examples that Vinay Lal uses to demonstrate that nearly every idea which we take for granted in the West is part of a politics of ideas. Oppression is usually associated with class struggle and other forms of economic monopoly. Lal looks beyond this, deconstructing the cultural assumptions that have emerged alongside capitalism to offer a devastating critique of the politics of knowledge at the heart of all powerbroking. Other topics examined are the concept of development, which has provided a mandate for surreptitious colonisation, and the idea of the nation-state, something we have lived with for no more than two centuries yet is accepted without question. Linking this to the emergence of international governance through the United Nations, the US and imperial economic bodies such as the IMF and WTO, Lal explains how such universalisms came to dominate the trajectory of Western thought.
