Metadata in Practice Diane I. Hillmann, Elaine L. Westbrook, American Library Association, 2004-06-07 This collection of reports from the field is an opportunity for librarians to learn from the experience of others involved in technically diverse digital library archive projects It offers project planners metadata librarians systems and technical services librarians and catalogers a problem solving approach and real world supplement Metadata In Practice Diane Ileana Hillmann, Elaine L. Westbrook, 2009 Standard Practice for Metadata to Support Archived Data Management Systems , Metadata , 1997 This paper describes emerging metadata practice and standards It outlines an approximate typology of approaches and explores different strands of metadata activity It discusses trends in format development metadata management and use of protocols Metadata Best Practices and Guidelines Jung-ran Park, 2014-07-10 Metadata best practices and guidelines function as an essential mechanism for metadata planning application and management and interoperability There has been a rapidly growing body of digital repositories and collections accordingly a wide range of digital projects and initiatives have adopted various metadata standards Because of differences in the formats and knowledge domains of the resources it is inevitable that these digital projects and initiatives may have different needs regarding metadata Therefore when a metadata standard is adopted in various institutions and organizations it may have to be modified to reflect the community needs and characteristics of given resources The flexibility and complex structure of natural language allow for the representation of a concept in various ways Thus common understanding and definitions of terms in a given metadata standard is essential for quality metadata generation management interoperability and resource sharing This opens up a pressing need for a systematic examination of documentation practices an area that up to now has been relatively unexplored This book begins to fill the research gap through an empirical assessment of metadata guidelines and best practices This is a book published as a special issue of the Journal of Library Metadata Moving Theory Into Practice Anne R. Kenney, Oya Y. Rieger, 2000 Describes techniques for the digital conversion of library and archive materials Covers decision making in conversion and presentation quality control techniques and practical aspects of image management and use Describes how to move from digital conversion projects to sustainable programmes Provides guidance on the selection of materials for digital conversion

Exploring Contemporary Classification Practices Jack Andersen, Joacim Hansson, 2025-07-15 The contributions in Exploring Contemporary Classification Practices analyse various aspects of classification and their importance to contemporary debates surrounding cultural heritage and information access Specific focus is on systems of classification media technologies and cultural institutions such as libraries archives and museums and how they respond to challenges including classificatory bias truth neutrality institutional tradition and technological innovation Raising awareness of classification practices in modern culture serves to emphasize how sorting things into categories is both an everyday accomplishment and a highly cultural and political activity with consequences for those who are classified and for those who classify Throughout this book classification is defined as the practice and activity of systematically ordering and categorizing entities to bring structure and understanding to diverse contexts This book addresses several timely issues both in terms of theoretical advancement and empirical diversity The scholarly discussion on the classification and organization of knowledge has developed with digital technologies from a bibliographic paradigm into something much wider as the need for metadata and classification has become critical for usability and legitimacy This development has also led research on classification and knowledge organization to confront a new post humanist reality with not only emerging varieties of information currents in society but also the development of new theoretical and methodological strands such as post colonial and intersectional perspectives and digital humanities methodologies In doing so this book seeks to address critical questions for the archives library and museum sectors concerning the organization of information Exploring Contemporary Classification Practices will therefore be of interest to academics researchers and practitioners with interests in library and information science archives cultural heritage and digital heritage
