Epilepsy Jerome Engel, 2005-04-01 This volume is the second in a series developed under the auspices of the World Federation of Neurology to meet the needs of neurologists who must practice medicine without many of the advantages that are often taken for granted in the industrialized world It is targeted to neurologists practicing in low resource environments and those who wish to practice cost effective neurology and addresses issues important for neurologists in developing countries that are not covered in standard textbooks The series will update the reader in currently accepted diagnostic and management practice Material is presented in a user friendly interactive manner with abundant case material Epilepsy is one of the most common serious primary brain disorders affecting forty million people worldwide According to the World Health Organization epilepsy accounts for 1% of the Global Burden of Disease equivalent to lung cancer in men and to breast cancer in women It is not surprising therefore that ten to twenty texts on epilepsy are published annually These texts contain the very latest information on diagnosis and treatment of various aspects of epilepsy however approximately 80% of people with epilepsy in the world live in developing countries where modern diagnostic and treatment approaches do not exist Upwards of 90% of people with epilepsy in these areas receive no treatment at all This is the first text to address the issues faced by neurologists who must deliver care with limited resources often in a setting of tropical diseases and malnutrition that characterize practice in developing countries

Pediatric Neurology, Part II Olivier Dulac, Maryse Lassonde, Harvey B. Sarnat, 2013-04-23 The child is neither an adult miniature nor an immature human being at each age it expresses specific abilities that optimize adaptation to its environment and development of new acquisitions Diseases in children cover all specialties encountered in adulthood and neurology involves a particularly large area ranging from the brain to the striated muscle the generation and functioning of which require half the genes of the whole genome and a majority of mitochondrial ones Human being nervous system is sensitive to prenatal aggression is particularly immature at birth and development may be affected by a whole range of age dependent disorders distinct from those that occur in adults Even diseases more often encountered in adulthood than childhood may have specific expression in the developing nervous system The course of chronic neurological diseases beginning before adolescence remains distinct from that of adult pathology not only from the cognitive but also motor perspective right into adulthood and a whole area is developing for adult neurologists to care for these children with persisting neurological diseases when they become adults Just as pediatric neurology evolved as an identified specialty as the volume and complexity of data became too much for the general pediatrician or the adult neurologist to master the discipline has now continued to evolve into so many subspecialties such as epilepsy neuromuscular disease stroke malformations neonatal neurology metabolic diseases etc that the general pediatric neurologist no longer can reasonably possess in depth expertise in all areas particularly in dealing with complex cases Subspecialty expertise thus is provided to some trainees through fellowship programmes following a general pediatric neurology residency and many of these fellowships include training in research Since the infectious context the genetic background and medical practice vary throughout the world this diversity needs to be represented in a pediatric neurology textbook Taken together and although brain malformations H Sarnat P Curatolo 2007 and oncology W Grisold R Soffietti are covered in detail in other volumes of the same series and therefore only briefly addressed here these considerations justify the number of volumes and the number of authors who contributed from all over the world Experts in the different subspecialties also contributed to design the general framework and contents of the book Special emphasis is given to the developmental aspect and normal development is reminded whenever needed brain muscle and the immune system The course of chronic diseases into adulthood and ethical issues specific to the developing nervous system are also addressed A volume in the Handbook of Clinical Neurology series which has an unparalleled reputation as the world's most comprehensive source of information in neurology International list of contributors including the leading workers in the field Describes the advances which have occurred in clinical neurology and the neurosciences their impact on the understanding of neurological disorders and on patient care Neurology in Developing Countries Bosko Barac, 1991 Neurology in Clinical Practice: The neurological disorders Walter George Bradley, 2000 Covers the most common neurological problems as well as neurological subspecialties related disciplines and relevant laboratory investigations Includes general principles of management of patients with neurological problems The second volume covers individual neurological diseases emphasizing diagnosis and treatment Neurological, Psychiatric, and Developmental Disorders Institute of Medicine, Board on

Global Health, Committee on Nervous System Disorders in Developing Countries, 2001-01-01 Brain disorders neurological psychiatric and developmental now affect at least 250 million people in the developing world and this number is expected to rise as life expectancy increases Yet public and private health systems in developing countries have paid relatively little attention to brain disorders The negative attitudes prejudice and stigma that often surround many of these disorders have contributed to this neglect Lacking proper diagnosis and treatment millions of individual lives are lost to disability and death Such conditions exact both personal and economic costs on families communities and nations The report describes the causes and risk factors associated with brain disorders It focuses on six representative brain disorders that are prevalent in developing countries developmental disabilities epilepsy schizophrenia bipolar disorder depression and stroke The report makes detailed recommendations of ways to reduce the toll exacted by these six disorders In broader strokes the report also proposes six major strategies toward reducing the overall burden of brain disorders in the developing world
