Neutralizing Memory

Neutralizing Memory:

Neutralizing Memory Iwona Irwin-Zarecka, 1990-01-01 This exploration of the texture of contemporary Polish Jewish relations has its origins in the author's haunting experience of growing up Polish and Jewish in Warsaw in the 1960s. It began with questions about silence: the silence of Jewish parents and the silence of once Jewish towns, the silence in Auschwitz and the silence about anti-Semitism. But when the author went to Europe in 1983 to work on the project that resulted in this book, Poland was in the midst of preparation for a grand commemoration of the Warsaw Ghetto uprising. From all parts of the political spectrum came calls to remember and to honor Polish Jews, to reexamine and to reassess the past. In effect, Poland was inviting the Jew into its household of memories. What did such an invitation mean? And what accounted for the timing? This vividly written account of the people, the politics, the goals and the obstacles behind words of remembrance in Poland is an example of cultural sociology at its best. The author draws on a combination of textual readings, interviews and historical analyses. The book's main strength is its continuous dialogue between analyst and insider, between knowledge and experience. Into a field where cognitive and emotional imprints make all the difference, the author brings unique appreciation of the power they hold; she has shared them. Into a field where partisanship so often passes for objectivity, she brings openly stated commitment. And into a field where particularism of concerns so often deadlocks understanding, she brings much needed broadening of vision. Students of modern Jewish history will find this volume an informative analysis of the past and present roles assigned to the Jew in Poland. Students of contemporary Poland will find new perspectives on its struggles for a democratic society. And for those concerned with how one reconciles one's self and one's history, Neutralizing Memory offers an empirically based reflection on the construction and deconstruction of remembrance. Burning Memory Alice Eckardt, 1993 Approaches the devastating events of 1933-1945 from the dual perspectives of some of those who lived through and survived the Nazis' wholesale murder of Europe's Jews and of some who recognize the need to remember that time and teach others to remember.

Immunological Memory David Gray, Jonathan Sprent, 1990 Although immunologists know rather a lot about the manifestation of immunological memory, an understanding of the mechanism of memory at cellular and biochemical levels eludes us. Indeed, as we shall see, it is not even clear which of the several models used to explain the working of memory approximates to the truth. It is in order to report on approaches to this problem and on recent experimental advances in the field of memory cells that this volume has been put together. In the past 4-5 years, cell surface molecules that may enable us to define memory B and T cells have been identified. It may now be possible to ask how memory cells are generated and to define what signals are required during or after antigenic encounter for a cell to enter the memory cell pool rather than to terminally differentiate into an effector cell. The transition from virgin cell to memory cell is clearly accompanied by several biochemical changes. For B cells, isotype switching and somatic mutations leading to affinity maturation are well defined phenomena, although the molecular mechanisms remain mysterious. Both have received attention in many excellent reviews of late and so are not considered in detail in this book Neither switching nor somatic mutation is a feature of peripheral T cell maturation biochemical differences between virgin and memory T cells may only relate to differing activation requirements and possibly changes in the expression of accessory molecules The Art of Memory Jewish Museum (New York, N.Y.),1994 We have chosen to investigate the reasons why memorials have been built to look at whose memory is being honored and to examine the responses to these memorials The creation of an exhibition and the production of this book presented the opportunity for an analytic perspective In the process we have neither created another memorial nor have we solely explored the field of Holocaust art Rather we have attempted to reveal the nature of the creative process through the discussion of specific examples of a number of memorials and we have tried to understand their meaning and the reaction to them in the many places where they exist Preface A War Against Memory? Isabel Wollaston,1996 Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association ,1991 Lackawanna Jurist ,1908 Harmony and Discord Elizabeth Skomp,Roman Źyla,2003 United States Supreme Court Reports United States.
