

Simple lighting techniques

Start your projects off with these effective lighting recipes

HIGH CONTRAST LIGHT AT 90°

A horridly results achieved with unmodified light. Using a single flash placed at this angle can create sunburning results, though. The bright and sharp-edged highlights lack texture and create stark shadows and bright highlights. Without a diffuser, the quality of light will be high contrast and if placed near the subject it will create problems with fall-off where light is spread unevenly across the face. By not using a reflector, shadows will be deep.

DIFFUSED LIGHT AND REFLECTOR

This is a much better set-up where the same light source is softened with a diffuser and a reflector. Diffusers give their softer effect as daylight cloud covers, spreading light from a single source into larger area. The diffuser will reduce the intensity of your flash unit, so you may need to dial up the output of the flash head, but the effect will be more flattering. The reflector works by bouncing some light back onto the until side of the face.

KEY

Diffused light (single flash with diffuser)

Single Flash Head

Single Flash Head with diffuser

HIGH CONTRAST LIGHT AT 45°

With a 45-degree angle to the side of the shot, this type of lighting reveals the hidden side of your subject's face. Placed at this angle, the subject's profile is cast in deep shadow. Positioned at this angle, acute angles, this light won't pick up as much skin texture, but it won't glaze the face in any kind of flattening aspect, regardless of the pose. Only one half of the face will be illuminated and, without any reflector, the other half will become a silhouette.

HIGH CONTRAST AT 45° WITH REFLECTOR

A much better blend of lighting set-up that reveals the three-dimensional characteristics of the face. Used in conjunction with a reflector, there is bright side reflection, which adds to subtle differences between the lit and reflected sides of the face. This light, in combination, creates a more three-dimensional, even, and natural-looking lighting. Much more flattering and a real shooting power for video portraiture photographers. To darken the shadows, pull the reflector away from the subject.

LOW CONTRAST AT 45° WITH REFLECTOR

With the addition of a diffuser to the single flash, the shadows are less pronounced, though not completely. This creates a longer band of soft-edged light, which makes this portrait much more even, active, and dramatic. For further results, use a circular柔光板, place it near the subject and reflector to create a soft glow to the face. An umbrella will create a similar effect to a diffuser and even the potentially off-camera strobe or ring of light.

RIM LIGHTING FROM BEHIND

This is the method for emphasizing the positive perimeter or shape of your subject's face. In this technique, the subject is not lit from the front but from behind to create a shadowing rim light effect. Only a single light source is needed and care must be taken not to turn the flash unit too high a power, as this power may burn the reflector as a diffuser, open up the aperture even wider, and, if needed, use a couple of reflectors with side-of-the-model-to-camera light back into the face.
