Students, Staff and Academic Mobility in

Higher Education Mike Byram, 2009-03-26 Academic mobility in higher education is an old phenomenon but it has become a high profile issue as the numbers of students and staff engaged and the number of countries involved has increased hugely in the last few decades For this reason and many others political cultural and educational this book reports research on the many facets of the experience and people involved both now and in the past The emphasis in research has so far tended to focus on contemporary student mobility but this collection deliberately includes articles on mobile staff because the question of mobility is a matter for universities and higher education in its entirety and not just a matter of bringing new students into existing and unchanging lectures laboratories and seminars Despite the fact that universities are and have been international institutions in their composition from the beginning universities became in the 19th and 20th century de facto national institutions This has changed and continues to change in the 21st century for many reasons but often financial as universities seek to enhance their budgets in a globalised economy and students seek to enhance their employment chances by acquiring qualifications with a difference However even if the starting point is financial nonetheless the chapters in this book demonstrate that the effects of mobility are much more far reaching The effects are on host universities on the university community of staff and students on the ways in which staff and students understand the nature of university study on the ways students may or may not integrate with a local community By experiencing something different for institutions an influx of students with different ideas about academic study for students an interaction with locals and with other internationals for staff a challenge to their assumptions about teaching and learning all see themselves in a new light and are often forced to change This book charts the changes which are happening now and will undoubtedly continue for the foreseeable future It therefore offers all involved a reflection on their own experience and practice and the means of improving them A
