

How to Write Mixed-Type Essays

A Mixed-Type essay is a combination of an opinion-led essay and an issue discussion essay. Therefore, it involves two questions to be answered, one asking for the writer's opinion, and the other asking for causes/effects/solutions of the topic.

Why could this be? (Causes)

Should governments give more financial support to local film industries? (Opinion)"

It is true that foreign films are more popular in many countries than domestically produced films. There could be several reasons why this is the case, and I believe that governments should promote local filmmaking by subsidizing the industry. (Paraphrase and Thesis, general opinion on the topic)

There are various reasons why many people find foreign films more enjoyable than the films produced in their own countries. Firstly, the established film industries in certain countries have huge budgets for action, special effects and shoot scenes in spectacular locations. Hollywood blockbusters like 'Avatar' or the James Bond films are examples of such productions, and their global appeal is undeniable. Another reason why these big-budget films are so successful is that they often star the most famous actors, and they are made by the most accomplished producers and directors. The poor quality, low-budget filmmaking in many countries suffers in comparison. (Answers to the 1st question: causes of the bigger popularity of foreign films than the local ones.)

In my view, governments should support local film industries financially. In almost all countries, there may be talented amateur filmmakers who just need to be given the opportunity to prove themselves. To compete with big-budget productions from overseas, these people need money to pay for film crews, actors and a host of other costs related to producing high-quality films. If governments did help with these costs, they would see an increase in employment, income from film sales, and perhaps even a rise in tourist numbers. New Zealand, for example, has seen an increase in tourism because the government partly funded the capturing of 'Lord of Rings' films. (Answers to the 2nd question: opinions on the government providing financial aid to local film productions.)

In conclusion, I believe that an increase in financial support could help to raise the quality of locally made films and allow them to compete with the foreign productions that currently dominate the market.

The Later Works of John Dewey 1925 1953 spans that entire period in Dewey's thought by including two important and previously unpublished documents from the book's history Dewey's unfinished new introduction written between 1947 and 1949 edited by the late Joseph Ratner and Dewey's unedited final draft of that introduction written the year before his death. In the intervening years Dewey realized the impossibility of making his use of the word experience understood. He wrote in his 1951 draft for a new introduction: Were I to write or rewrite Experience and Nature today I would entitle the book Culture and Nature and the treatment of specific subject matters would be correspondingly modified. I would abandon the term experience because of my growing realization that the historical obstacles which prevented understanding of my use of experience are for all practical purposes insurmountable. I would substitute the term culture because with its meanings as now firmly established it can fully and freely carry my philosophy of experience.
