

Nick Bayly meets leading specialist sports osteopath Paul Morrissey, whose Surrey-based practice is pioneering techniques to keep golfers of all ages and skill levels swinging without pain

ALL GAIN NO PAIN

Touching all the wood I can find near my shins, I've been lucky enough to avoid serious injury during my 45 years on this planet. Aside from a broken collarbone phonying me in my teens, I've never had cause to visit a doctor or hospital. For anything more than hayfever injections and the sort of my teeth children.

If my lack of serious injury down to my unwillingness to over exert myself, and, from a golfing standpoint, this complete lack of tension in my golf swing. My arms-led movement creates close to zero torque, and although I have felt the odd twinge when leaning over to pick my ball out of the hole, I am fortunate enough to have never been laid up with a bad back, or been unable to play for any medical reasons (fingers you count, temporary lameness).

But in my blissful pain-free state, I realise I am a member of small and very fortunate minority. As a nation of largely desk-bound workers, who throw themselves into their weekly games of golf without as much as a practice swing or a warm stretch, the likelihood of causing serious and lasting damage to our backs, knees, arms and wrists has never been greater. These top touring pros, with their fluid swing and armies of physios and strength coaches, are susceptible to injuries, while for the rest of us duffers – with our abnormal balance, awkward balance and terrible spine angles – the prospect of a pain-free back and a regular golf habit is practically impossible.

Many a golfing career has been cut cruelly short by injury, with over 80% of all professionals reporting having suffered from physical pain as a direct consequence of golf at some point in their lives. And with the swings of pros becoming ever more explosive, the likelihood of keeping 26 members in perfect alignment seems increasingly challenging, never mind the pressures exerted on other parts of the body.

More than anything, it is the repetitive nature of the movement, and some golfers' willingness to pound balls for hours and hours on the driving range, that leads to wear and tear on muscles, tendons, discs and bones. And while pro-golfers do their best to ensure repeatability, healthy swing they can perform hundreds of swings a day, the untrained amateur stands no encounter even minor problems, even if they're not boasting quite so many balls.

"It's a simple fact that the human body just isn't made to hit a golf ball," says Paul Morrissey, a passionate golfer and founder of the Surrey-based Osteopathy Clinic of Physical Medicine (OCOPM), a private practice with offices based in Wokingham and Addlestone. "Whenever you put a force on a click or a joint that combines two or more motions, it may cause damage."

It's a chilling thought, but Paul knows a thing or two about golf injuries. His clinical training as an osteopath and his lasting love of golf has led him to spend the best part of 20 years working with some of the game's leading players and coaches. He is personal osteopath to renowned swing guru David Leadbetter, and jets back and forth across the Atlantic several times a year to work with David, along with many other top coaches and tour players, including 2008 Masters' champion Trevor Immelman and Ryder Cup player David Howell.

body, it will cause damage. Injuries to reach the top of the game.

Recognised for his extensive experience in clinical pilates and sports medicine, Paul set up OCOPM in 2006, and has earned a reputation for working at the cutting edge of treatment for sports-related injuries. He also treats dancers and other athletes, as well as people with more sporting injuries, and is now launching a golf-specific service, which will treat golfers of all ages and skill levels. Weedon's Way - The Pain-Free Way

Reeves Weedon, 2022-10-06 With back injuries in golf rising there is clearly a need to investigate and resolve the problem via the biomechanics of the swing rather than researching the technology of the clubs Having worked with scientists and doctors with a historical interest in innovation within sporting techniques at Northern Michigan University Michigan State University USA and Sports Surgery Clinic Dublin we have discovered that compared to the modern swing our revolutionary Weedon's Way swing creates significant less torque between the thorax and pelvis without loss of performance The Pain Free Way A Swing for Golfers with Bad Backs In the modern swing during the downswing the thorax accelerates whilst the pelvis decelerates As a consequence the thorax and pelvis act in opposite directions massive torque is inflicted on the lumbosacral spine mainly at L5 S1 In the Weedon s Way swing the thorax and pelvis travel at similar speeds reducing the aforementioned torque In essence we remove the axis tilt i e body s side bend on the downswing In the course of my project I have collated and reviewed 17 years of scientific research papers relating to low back pain in golf The solution common to all papers is to play practise less whilst performing core strengthening exercises There has never been an evidence based alternative until now Swing Weedon s Way The Pain Free Way Sports Injury Eric Shamus,Jennifer Shamus,2001 A guide to sports injury prevention and rehabilitation that includes a detailed biomechanical analysis of each injury coverage of sport specific injuries and their treatment and insight on the causes cures and prevention of the most common injuries in twelve major sports
