Shipwrecks of Curry County H.S. Contino,2017-07-17 Historically mariners considered the Oregon coast one of the most dangerous in the world In 1852 explorers discovered gold in the rivers and along the beaches in Curry County which is located in the southwestern corner of the state Subsequent settlement concentrated on the coast With few roads water transportation was crucial for early settlers The area contained many potential dangers to ships including unpredictable weather frequent fog and submerged rocks and reefs There have been many shipwrecks in the area like that of the tanker Larry Doheny which was torpedoed by a Japanese submarine during World War II Curry County is home to Cape Blanco the second most westerly point in the continental United States and Port Orford the only open water port on the Oregon coast and one of only six dolly ports in the world Modern technology and port improvements have reduced the number of shipwrecks but accidents still occur Encyclopedia of Civil War Shipwrecks W. shipwrecks whose locations are in question Since the 1960s the underwater access afforded by SCUBA gear has allowed divers historians treasure hunters and archaeologists to discover and explore many of the American Civil War related shipwrecks In a remarkable feat of historical detective work Gaines scoured countless sources from government and official records to sports diver and treasure hunting magazines and cross indexes his compilation by each vessel s various names and nicknames throughout its career An essential reference work for Civil War scholars and buffs archaeologists divers and aficionados of naval history Encyclopedia of Civil War Shipwrecks revives and preserves for posterity the little known stories of these intriguing historical artifacts Disasters of Oregon ,1941 Lost Treasure Ships of the Oregon Coast

Mexico These investigations reveal the history of the early pan Pacific navigation and maritime globalization from the 16th to the 18th century covering the background and formation concept and practice as well as the results and influence of this early globalization and global economy emphasizing the maritime archaeological evidence of Spanish exploration of transportation between East Asia and North America The book provides an excellent opportunity for maritime archaeologists from both sides of the Pacific to share the latest findings and new developments in maritime archaeological exploration It discusses 16 18th century nautical trade and maritime cultural history and provides a comprehensive overview of research work in the Asia Pacific region Formation Processes of Maritime Archaeological Landscapes Alicia Caporaso, 2017-01-05

Research into the anthropogenic and taphonomic processes that affect the formation of maritime archaeological resources has grown significantly over the last decade in both theory and the analysis of specific sites and associated material culture The addition of interdisciplinary inquiry investigative techniques and analytical modeling from fields such as engineering oceanography and marine biology have increased our ability to trace the unique pathways through which archaeological sites progress from initial deposition to the present yet can also link individual sites into an integrated socio environmental maritime landscape This edited volume presents a global perspective of current research in maritime archaeological landscape formation processes In addition to classically considered submerged material culture and geography or those that can be accessed by traditional underwater methodology case studies include less often considered sites and landscapes These landscapes for example require archaeologists to use geophysical marine survey equipment to characterize extensive areas of the seafloor or go above the surface to access maritime archaeological resources that have received less scholarly attention Man & the Sea Wayne O'Neil, 2013

Man the sea tells the dramatic story of shipwrecks groundings and mishaps at the mouth of the Columbia River and its environs dating from 1792 up through the year 1949 These are stories of wooden ships under sail and brave mariners sailing without accurate charts facing the shifting sands monstrous rollers and roaring breakers of the Columbia River bar The Columbia River with nearby Long Beach Peninsula and Clatsop Spit have truly earned their infamous reputation as the Graveyard of the Pacific Provided by publisher Journal of Northwest Anthropology Darby C. Lighthouses and Life-Saving on the Oregon Coast David Pinyerd, 2007-06 The Oregon Coast has been the site of shipwrecks even before Lewis and Clark's arrival in 1805. Even as the population grew, the federal government let the Oregon Coast go unguarded by lighthouses and lifesavers for decades. Economic and political pressures finally forced the government to build the first Oregon lighthouse in 1857 at the Umpqua River. The Life-Saving Service followed in 1878 with a station at the mouth of Coos Bay. Eventually, most of the harbor entrances and headlands were protected by both the Lighthouse Service and the Life-Saving Service, the precursor to today's Coast Guard. Lighthouses and lifesaving on the Oregon Coast commemorate the true heroes who served to warn, protect, and rescue those who went to sea. Disaster Log of Ships Jim Gibbs, 1971.
