E. Evans-Pritchard, 2015-06-26 Excerpt from Nuer Religion I have previously written two books on the Nuer a cattle herding people dwelling in the swamps and savannah of the southern Anglo Egyptian Sudan The Nuer A Description of the Modes of Livelihood and Political Institutions of a Nilotic People was published in 1940 and Kinship and Marriage among the Nuer in 1951 The present volume Nuer Religion completes a study of the Nuer which began in 1930 Accounts of religion in writings on the Nuer are generally meagre and superficial The only detailed treatment is in Father J P Crazzolara s Zur Gesellschaft und Religion der Nuer 1953 much of which appeared earlier in volume viii of Father W Schmidt s Der Ursprung der Gottesidee 1949 Those who read his account will see that it differs in many respects from what I now present though less with regard to fact than in emphasis and interpretation Although Nuer religious ideas and practices were a part of their way of life which greatly interested me it was that to which I was able to give least attention during my short residence of a year in Nuerland It was necessary to learn their language and to study their manner of livelihood and their family kinship and political activities before giving close attention to the more difficult problems of their religious thought These tasks all the heavier in the arduous conditions in which they had to be carried out left me little time to pursue anything which could be called a systematic inquiry into religious matters What I record I witnessed myself or is information given spontaneously during talks about other and more practical affairs or in comment on some event or experience Such observations may however be more valuable in a study of religious thought than those derived from purposive inquiry This is especially so when a people lack as the Nuer do anything which offers easy scope for such an inquiry for they have nothing which can properly be called dogma liturgy and sacraments in sensu stricto and they lack a developed religious cult and mythology This is doubtless one of the reasons why for the most part those who have written about the Nuer have said so little about their religion About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an

E. Evans-Pritchard,2017-09-16 Excerpt from Nuer Religion This difficulty is not easily overcome because it is not merely a matter of definitions but involves also personal judgement It would be useless to deny this and rash to ignore it It may be said that in describing and interpreting a primitive religion it should make no difference whether the writer is an agnostic or a Christian Jew Muslim Hindu or whatever he may be but in fact it makes a great deal of difference for even in a descriptive study judgement can in no way be avoided Those who give assent to the religious beliefs of their own people feel and think and therefore also write differently about the beliefs of other peoples from those who do not give assent to them This is not the place to discuss further this difficulty I merely wish to recognize that it exists and that it introduces into writings about religion complications which are not present when writing about for example kinship or husbandry I am of course well aware that Nuer religion is very unlike what we know in general about Negro religions One cannot even say that it is a typical Nilotic religion It is certainly very unlike the religion of the Anuak of the Luo of Kenya of the Acholi of the Alur or of the Shilluk Indeed only the religion Of the Dinka can be said to have strongly marked affinities with it and it can be further said that in some respects the religions of these two peoples resemble less other Negro religions than some of the historic religions They have features which bring to mind the Hebrews of the Old Testament Professor C G Seligman clearly sensed this as his account of the Dinka and Nuer shows and Iviiss Ray Huffman an American Presbyterian missionary who spent many years among the Nuer remarks that the missionary feels as if he were living in Old Testament times and in a way this is true 1 When therefore I sometimes draw comparisons between Nuer and Hebrew conceptions it is no mere whim but is because I myself find it helpful and I think others may do so too in trying to understand Nuer ideas to note this likeness to something with which we are ourselves familiar without being too intimately involved in it About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Nuer Religion Edward Evan Evans-Pritchard,1962 Nuer Religion Edward E. Evans-Pritchard,1977 Nuer Religion E. E. Evans-Pritchard,1974 Nuer Prophets Douglas Hamilton Johnson,1994 This is the first major study of the Nuer based on primary research since Evans Pritchard s classic Nuer Religion It is also the first full length historical study of indigenous African prophets operating outside the context of the world s main religions and as such builds on Evans

Pritchard's pioneering work in promoting collaboration and dialogue between the disciplines of anthropology and history. Prophets first emerged as significant figures among the Nuer in the nineteenth century. They fashioned the religious idiom of prophecy from a range of spiritual ideas and enunciated the social principles which broadened and sustained a moral community across political and ethnic boundaries. Douglas Johnson argues that contrary to the standard anthropological interpretation the major prophets' lasting contribution was their vision of peace not their role in war. This vision is particularly relevant today and the book concludes with a detailed discussion of events in the Sudan since independence in 1956 describing how modern Nuer and many other southern Sudanese still find the message of the nineteenth century prophets relevant to their experiences in the current civil war.

Indigenous Religions Graham Harvey, 2000-01-01. Indigenous religions are the majority of the world's religions. This Companion shows how much they can contribute to a richer understanding of human identity, action and relationships. An international team of contributors discuss representative indigenous religions from all continents. The book is in three parts: Persons, Powers and Gifts. Relevant to everyone interested in human religiosity today.

The Slain God Timothy Larsen, 2014-08-28. Throughout its entire history the discipline of anthropology has been perceived as undermining or even discrediting Christian faith. Many of its most prominent theorists have been agnostics who assumed that ethnographic findings and theories had exposed religious beliefs to be untenable. E. B. Tylor, the founder of the discipline in Britain, lost his faith through studying anthropology. James Frazer saw the material that he presented in his highly influential work The Golden Bough as demonstrating that Christian thought was based on the erroneous thought patterns of savages. On the other hand, some of the most eminent anthropologists have been Christians, including E. E. Evans-Pritchard, Mary Douglas, Victor Turner and Edith Turner. Moreover, they openly presented articulate reasons for how their religious convictions cohered with their professional work. Despite being a major site of friction between faith and modern thought, the relationship between anthropology and Christianity has never before been the subject of a book-length study. In this groundbreaking work, Timothy Larsen examines the point where doubt and faith collide with anthropological theory and evidence.

The Anthropological Lens Christopher Morton, 2020-02-08. Sir Edward Evan Evans-Pritchard (1902-1973) is widely considered the most influential British anthropologist of the twentieth century, known to generations of students for his seminal works on South Sudanese ethnography, Witchcraft, Oracles and Magic Among the Azande (OUP, 1937) and The Nuer (OUP, 1940). In these works, now classics in the anthropological literature, Evans-Pritchard broke new ground on questions of rationality, social accountability, kinship, social and political organization and religion, as well as influentially moving the discipline in Britain away from the natural sciences and towards history. Yet despite much discussion about his theoretical contributions to anthropology, no study has yet explored his fieldwork in detail in order to get a better understanding of its historical contexts, local circumstances or the social encounters out of which it emerged. This book then is just such an exploration of Evans-Pritchard, the fieldworker, through the lens of his fieldwork photography.

Through an engagement with his photographic archive and by thinking with it alongside his written ethnographies and other unpublished evidence the book offers a new insight into the way in which Evans Pritchard's theoretical contributions to the discipline were shaped by his fieldwork and the numerous local people in Africa with whom he collaborated. By writing history through field photographs we move back towards the fieldwork experiences exploring the vivid traces lived realities and local presences at the heart of the social encounter that formed the basis of Evans Pritchard's anthropology

Providing a guide to the ideas arguments and history of the discipline this volume discusses human social and cultural life in all its diversity and difference. Theory ethnography and history are combined in over 230 entries on topics

Historical Dictionary of South Sudan Douglas H. Johnson, Kuyok Abol Kuyok, Nicki Kindersley, 2025-05-06

This is the first ever historical dictionary of South Sudan as an independent nation. It focuses on the events peoples and cultures of South Sudan that were once treated as marginal to the grand narrative of Sudanese national history but without disentangling South Sudan from wider historical connections across the Nile Valley and Northeast Africa. With an interpretive introduction by the three authors it offers new perspectives on historical events and personalities extensive coverage of recent events and current affairs short biographies of leading social and political figures an extensive chronology a comprehensive bibliography and maps based on current research illustrating specific issues confronting the new nation. Building on the classical anthropological and historical studies of South Sudanese peoples as well as new research especially by South Sudanese authors it provides a foundation on which to build new research on South Sudan and new perspectives on its shared history with Sudan and the wider region.

Historical Dictionary of South Sudan contains a chronology an introduction and an extensive bibliography. The dictionary section has more than 500 cross referenced entries on important personalities as well as aspects of the country's politics economy foreign relations religion and culture. This book is an excellent resource for students researchers and anyone wanting to know more about South Sudan

Social-scientific Old Testament Criticism David J. Chalcraft, 1997-01-01

Collected here in one volume are the best examples of social scientific Old Testament criticism from the last 20 years of the Journal for the Study of the Old Testament an essential introduction to the field. Divided into six sections this volume presents essays on the central methodological and theoretical issues as well as a series of applications to the study of early Israelite social forms the formal and informal regulation of life the distribution of power and justice and the performance of social roles and the process of group formation. The volume brings home how indispensable a social science approach is for the reconstruction of the Israelite social world not to say our own worlds and productions as well embodying the finest traditions of classical social theory and the interface with exciting new developments
