standard reporting formats for assessing and reporting on the MPO s compliance with the planning requirements so that the Dept can identify any deficiencies and the extent to which the MPO s have made progress in implementing the requirements

Metropolitan Transportation Planning.. Library of Congress. Congressional Research Service,2010 Discusses issues related to State and local metropolitan planning organizations MPOs which are mandated by Federal law in each urbanized area with a population of 50 000 or more to help plan surface transportation infrastructure and services and explains their role in metropolitan transportation planning process Examines decision making and funding authority of MPOs relative to State transportation departments representation and participation in MPOs MPO funding and technical capacity implementation of livability sustainability initiatives and other issues Metropolitan Transportation Planning Seminars

,1970 Crs Report for Congress Congressional Research Service: The Libr,William J. Mallett,2013-11 Federal law requires state and local governments to designate a metropolitan planning organization MPO in each urbanized area with a population of 50 000 or more to help plan surface transportation infrastructure and services There are currently 381 MPOs nationwide Despite some strengthening of their authority over the years MPOs have generally remained subordinate to state departments of transportation DOTs in the planning and selecting programming of projects using federal surface transportation funds Moreover it can be argued that at the metropolitan level MPOs are subordinate to local governments that own and operate many elements of the transportation system and also control land use planning and zoning Because of the perceived weakness of MPOs some in the transportation community have argued that they ought to be given much more power over the planning and programming of projects using federal surface transportation funds Some of these observers go so far as to suggest that federal policies and programs in a number of areas including transportation housing and the environment need to be coordinated on a metropolitan scale and that MPOs are the organizational venue where this should occur Others argue that the relationship between state government local government and MPOs is well balanced The Transportation Planning Process ,2007 Transportation Planning for Access to Jobs Melissa M. Laube,1997 This report presents three case studies of innovative transportation planning efforts in metropolitan areas to improve access to jobs for current welfare recipients and other low income residents These Access to Jobs case studies of the Hartford St Louis and Detroit metropolitan areas focus on developing transportation solutions that meet locally defined goals and objectives and ensure that former welfare recipients have the needed mobility to reach employment opportunities The experiences of each area offer a number of insights into how metropolitan transportation planning process might be applied in developing solutions to employment access problems Topics discussed include local conditions job access problem types and characteristics of existing and planned services impact of proposed solutions organizational roles and responsibilities context of planning effort resource constraints and planning methods
