Mice In The Ink:

Mice in the Ink Ethel Jacobson, 1955      Senolytics in Disease, Ageing and Longevity Daniel Muñoz-Espin, Marco Demaria, 2020-04-27 This book offers comprehensive information on the new and rapidly evolving science of identifying and targeting senescent cells and on the exciting prospect of new diagnostic and therapeutic opportunities for stopping and even reversing the progression of disease and the deterioration of the human body due to ageing According to recent United Nations data by 2050 one in six people worldwide will be older than age 65 with peaks rising to one in four people in Europe and North America Remarkably the number of persons aged 80 years or older is expected to triple from 143 million in 2019 to 426 million in 2050 First documented in the 1960s the concept of cellular senescence as an underlying cause of ageing has been established in the course of the last decade Using genetically engineered mouse models researchers have demonstrated that the selective elimination of senescent cells can block and even reverse a number of age related dysfunctions and pathologies promoting both better health and longer life in the elderly These include cardiovascular diseases neurological disorders type 1 and type 2 diabetes inflammatory diseases fibrosis geriatric syndromes chronic diseases resulting in organ dysfunction the integrity of the musculoskeletal system and cancer Some senolytic agents have already progressed into trials These include UBX0101 for the treatment of osteoarthritis now in phase II a cocktail of dasatinib and quercetin for the management of idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis and chronic kidney disease and ABT 263 in combination with senescence inducing chemotherapies for the treatment of advanced solid tumours In addition the book discusses pathways to early phase clinical trials and translational approaches in medicine and ageing highlighting new opportunities as well as current limitations challenges and alternatives Given its scope it will benefit a broad audience of advanced educators researchers graduate students and practitioners

Transcriptional and Chromatin Regulation in Adaptive and Innate Immune Cells Keiko Ozato, Dinah S. Singer, 2020-05-22 Transcription depends on an ordered sequence of events starting with i setting of the enhancer and chromatin environment ii assembly of DNA binding and general transcription factors iii initiation elongation processing of mRNA and termination followed by iv creation of epigenetic marks and memory formation Highlighting the importance of these activities more than 10% total genes are dedicated to regulating transcriptional mechanisms This area of research is highly active and new insights are continuously being added to our knowledge Cells of the immune system have unique features of gene regulation to support diverse tasks required for innate and adaptive immunity Innate immunity involves the recognition of external infectious and noxious agents as well as internal cancer cell components and the elimination of these agents by non specific mechanisms Adaptive immunity involves gene rearrangement to achieve highly specific T and B cell responses imparting the capability of self and non self discrimination This requires transcription and epigenetic regulation Adaptive immunity also employs epigenetic memory enabling recapitulation of prior transcription Recent advances in nuclear architecture chromatin structure and transcriptional regulation have provided new insights into immune responses The increased understanding of these molecular mechanisms is now affording opportunities to improve therapeutic strategies for various diseases
