Our Fragile Brains:

Our Fragile Brains David Gareth Jones,1981 Why Good Thinking Starts with God: Thinking About Thinking Stephen J. Fyson,2024-09-24 Everyone has their own thoughts and ideas about our origins morality and even spirituality But where do our thoughts begin Why do we think the way that we do And should we rely on our own thoughts to guide us in our daily interactions with one another Stephen J Fyson dives deeper into thinking examining the roots of these questions and pointing the reader to discover why good thinking starts with God In this short look into the history of psychology and the history of some thinking religions Fyson encourages the reader to examine their thoughts a little more closely to find what everyone is searching for Truth

Brain Mystery Light and Dark Charles Don Keyes,2006-06-07 Brain Mystery Light and Dark examines scientific models of how the brain becomes conscious and argues that the spiritual dimension of life is compatible with the main scientific theories Keyes shows us that the belief in the unity of mind and brain does not necessarily undermine aesthetic religious and ethical beliefs

Zen-Brain Reflections James H. Austin,2010-09-24 A sequel to the popular Zen and the Brain further explores pivotal points of intersection in Zen Buddhism neuroscience and consciousness arriving at a new synthesis of information from both neuroscience research and Zen studies This sequel to the widely read Zen and the Brain continues James Austin s explorations into the key interrelationships between Zen Buddhism and brain research In Zen Brain Reflections Austin a clinical neurologist researcher and Zen practitioner examines the evolving psychological processes and brain changes associated with the path of long range meditative training Austin draws not only on the latest neuroscience research and new neuroimaging studies but also on Zen literature and his personal experience with alternate states of consciousness Zen Brain Reflections takes up where the earlier book left off It addresses such questions as how do placebos and acupuncture change the brain Can neuroimaging studies localize the sites where our notions of self arise How can the latest brain imaging methods monitor meditators more effectively How do long years of meditative training plus brief enlightened states produce pivotal transformations in the physiology of the brain In many chapters testable hypotheses suggest ways to correlate normal brain functions and meditative training with the phenomena of extraordinary states of consciousness After briefly introducing the topic of Zen and describing recent research into meditation Austin reviews the latest studies on the amygdala frontotemporal interactions and paralimbic extensions of the limbic system He then explores different states of consciousness both the early superficial absorptions and the later major peak experiences This discussion begins with the states called kensho and satori and includes a fresh analysis of their several different expressions of oneness He points beyond the still more advanced states toward that rare ongoing stage of enlightenment that is manifest as sage wisdom Finally with reference to a delayed moonlight phase of kensho Austin envisions novel links between migraines and metaphors moonlight and mysticism The Zen perspective on the self and consciousness is an ancient one Readers will discover how relevant Zen is to the neurosciences and how each field can illuminate the other

Neuroethology of the Colonial Mind: Ecological and Evolutionary Context of Social Brains J. Frances Kamhi, Sara Arganda Carreras, Mathieu Lihoreau, 2023-10-02 Animal groups often display striking collective organization which relies on social interactions These interactions require neural substrates supporting the exchange of information among individuals and the processing of this information The social brain hypothesis suggested from neuroanatomical findings in primates posits that increasing levels of sociality involve a higher investment in neural tissue to cope with social information However distributed cognition and swarm intelligence might alleviate the cognitive load on the individuals and potentially reduce their neural requirements Research on social insects which are an exemplar of collective action has so far produced mixed results Individual cognition and collective action have received a lot of attention and much progress has been done in each of those fields however much less is understood about how the two interact Our goal is to aggregate theoretical and experimental research exploring the links between the complexity of individual and collective behaviors Experimental research testing the social brain hypothesis showed little support for a general explanation across the animal kingdom The relationship between the cognitive abilities of animals and their social interactions are much more complex than previously thought and tackling this problem requires a better knowledge of the fundamental mechanisms underpinning socio cognitive tasks What is the information used by the animals during social interactions How much information is necessary How many neurons and which neural circuits are required for processing this information What neural connections are important Do these social interactions involve memory formation How do the cognitive requirements and neural circuits vary between group members Answering these questions will bring considerable insights into the cognitive complexity involved for social and collective behaviors It will also advance our understanding of inter individual cognitive variability and division of labor in most socially advanced species This Research

Topic will be a unique forum for researchers from different fields neurogenetics neuro ethology evolutionary ecology cognitive ecology collective animal behavior computational modeling working on different species to present up to date advances on the physiological correlates of social behavior and delineate future directions for the field of social neuroethology We welcome contributions on any aspect of the cognitive requirements of social and collective behaviors from molecular cellular and circuit level approaches to how individuals contribute to group action at the behavioral level Specific areas of interest include but are not limited to studies on the neural underpinnings of division of labor neuromodulation or neurogenetics of social behaviors the neural circuits and neuroanatomical basis of group action and how social signals affect learning and behavior We encourage submissions that present original research and review evidence or compare data from multiple species We hope to include work from different disciplines and on a wide range of species including model non model and wild animals with the aim of gaining insight into the patterns of neural investment in individual cognition The
