Morris Janowitz, 1991-05-28 In the four decades following the end of World War II Morris Janowitz 1919 88 published major works in macrosociology urban and political sociology race and ethnic relations and the study of armed forces and society His research was deeply rooted in the traditions of philosophical pragmatism and the Chicago school of sociology influences which led him to reject grand theories and mechanistic explanations of social life Yet he remained confident in the capacity of sociological reason to come to grips with central aspects of the human condition On the basis of his studies Janowitz came to believe that the transition from early to advanced industrial society radically altered institutional organization to make democratic social control more difficult though not impossible to achieve The task of his pragmatic sociology was to identify fundamental trends in the social organization of industrial societies to indicate their substantive implications for social control and to clarify realistic alternatives for institution building which would strengthen the prospects for maintaining liberal democratic regimes In this volume James Burk selects from Janowitz s scholarly writings to provide a comprehensive overview of his wide ranging interests Organized to demonstrate the common logic of inquiry and substantive unity of Janowitz s contribution to several subfields of sociology the collection includes analyses of the concept of social control ethnic intolerance and hostility citizenship in Western societies models for urban education and the professionalization of military elites Burk provides a richly detailed critical account of Janowitz s intellectual development placing his writings in historical context and showing their continuing relevance for sociological research Useful to both students and specialists the volume is an important source for the ideas and methods of one of sociology s leading figures     Distribution and Differential Location of Public Utilities in Urban Delhi Girish Kumar Misra, K. Metropolization Alain Bourdin, 2024-05-27 This book characterizes a type of city i e the metropolis by using characteristics which have very little to do with its size It distinguishes between metropolises and megacities and defines these different characteristics by bringing together elements related to facilities accessibility and economic power on one hand and other elements which relate more to the capacity for innovation and more generally to the knowledge society and economy All of which demonstrate the process of metropolization as well as elements of daily life and more generally elements which relate to the urban experience To live in a metropolis is not only to benefit from more urban amenities but also to live in a different way in particular in a world which is much more diverse in every respect Based on a series of metropolization criteria constructed and discussed this book goes beyond ordinary statistical approaches to integrate the interterritorial scale of metropolitan systems as well as their qualitative dimension Following in Simmel's footsteps it shows that a city is also an atmosphere a mentality a spirit all of which are poorly captured by statistical data As such the book focuses on five major themes networks economic development social issues urban form and the ecological and digital transition The book makes an interesting read for urban planners sociologists planners and architects and all specialists working in this field

Constructing Metropolitan Space Jill Simone Gross, Enrico Gualini, Lin Ye, 2018-12-07 There is little question today that processes of globalization affect national and local economies governance processes and conditions for economic competitiveness in the major urban regions of the world In most liberal democratic countries these processes are occurring according to a rationale which attempts to combine strategies of state supported development with increasing local regional governmental decentralization and autonomy Against this background the issue of metropolitan development is being redefined worldwide along with its institutional frameworks modes of governance policy instruments and spatial planning strategies The overarching assumption of this volume is that metropolitan space far from being consolidated as a policy object is currently being redefined and in some instances constructed and contested as a scale through a variety of policy practices related to spatial economic development objectives Through case studies drawn from across four continents the authors reveal a range of interesting cross national commonalities concerning the power that state actors situated at various spatial scales exert as agents in these processes This volume interrogates key research issues raised by these developments and is intended as a contribution to the establishment of a globally comparative analysis of the construction of metropolitan spaces and scales under conditions of globalization and neoliberalization
