perspective on Barth's theology and political radicalism Accordingly the essays contained in this volume deal with the two main areas of interest in Marquardt's theological journey Part 1 presents essays dealing with new perspectives in the relationship between Christians and Jews after the Shoah promoting for example the significance of the Jewish No to the Messiahship of Jesus for Christian theology and the relevance of Talmudic studies for Christians Part 2 presents examples of Marquardt's approach to Barth's theology emphasizing the relevance of connecting the theological and the political spheres in general and the socialist horizon in particular in Barth's theological framework This perspective is supported by an abundance of historical evidence and by deciphering Barth's unpublished Socialist Speeches from the Safenwil period

Christian world have rarely if ever voiced their negative views of Christianity without first considering the consequences Still despite the long history of so many one sided debates and discussions Professor Rothschild finds in the five Jewish thinkers represented in this volume and the five Christian theologians who wrote the individual introductory essays evidence of a new relationship which he characterizes by the term mutuality Each of the five Jewish thinkers represents a particular Jewish outlook and each is concerned with what he believes to be the essential nature of Christianity as it appears to him from his historically and existentially conditioned perspective In turn each of the Christian respondents J Louis Martyn on Baeck Ekkehard Stegemann on Buber Bernhard Casper on Rosenzweig Bernhard Anderson on Herberg and John Merkle on Heschel deals with the question Which Judaism confronts here which type of Christianity The chief topics dealt with can be listed under the following headings 1 the person and significance of Jesus 2 the polarity of law and gospel works and faith human righteousness and divine grace 3 the place of the Hebrew Bible in Christianity and 4 the role of the church as the New Israel vis a vis the Jews as the Old Israel according to the flesh While the selections in this volume are for the most part forthright statements by forthright men Professor Rothschild offers a fascinating glimpse in his introduction of some of the private reservations of some of these Jewish thinkers and even blunt criticisms that never found their way into their published works The volume concludes with an extensive bibliography by and about the thinkers presented particularly with regard to their views on Christianity BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved
