Larry Larned, 1998-09-03 Since 1938 when the Merritt s first 7 mile section was opened to traffic millions have shared a fascination for Connecticut s Merritt Parkway and its bridges A survey made in 1928 called for a two lane macadam highway to run from Stratford to Greenwich with 1 million of state money construction started on the Merritt Highway in 1932 Opened for 38 miles on September 2 1940 it became known throughout Fairfield County as the Queen of Parkways Discover the beginnings of this groundbreaking advance in American travel in Traveling the Merritt Parkway This pictorial history preserves and pays tribute to the history of the Merritt and explores the construction of the parkway as well as the little known parent highway for which the earliest bridges were constructed including White Plains Road in the town of Trumbull

Larry Larned, 2002-07 Hartford is an old New England river city separated from its eastern neighbors by the Connecticut River. With the opening of the Merritt Parkway in 1940 and construction of the Wilbur Cross Parkway inviting traffic from Boston and New York, the Connecticut legislature realized a new river bridge at Hartford would be a must for local and through traffic. This became a reality in 1942 when the Charter Oak Bridge was opened to traffic. By 1948 the system of roads and highways numbered Route 15 was completed with Hartford as its focal point. The character of the three Connecticut parkways—the Berlin Turnpike, the Hartford Bypass, and the Charter Oak Bridge—is described in Route 15: The Road to Hartford. Highway historian and retired highway engineer Larry Larned, author of Traveling the Merritt Parkway, has appeared in television and radio interviews speaking about Route 15 and the nation's early roads. Route 15: The Road to Hartford presents images from his forty years of collecting and documenting Connecticut roadside culture, architecture, and engineering. His detailed account of the road to Hartford includes personal recollections of traveling Route 15 as a youngster and studying the details along the way: the tollbooths, the bow-tied gas station attendants, the families on picnics at rest stops.
