Metallography And Microstructure Of Ancient And Historic Metals:

Metallography and Microstructure in Ancient and Historic Metals David A. Scott, 1992-01-02 David A Scott provides a detailed introduction to the structure and morphology of ancient and historic metallic materials. Much of the scientific research on this important topic has been inaccessible scattered throughout the international literature or unpublished. This volume, although not exhaustive in its coverage, fills an important need by assembling much of this information in a single source. Jointly published by the GCI and the J Paul Getty Museum, the book deals with many practical matters relating to the mounting, preparation, etching, polishing, and microscopy of metallic samples, and includes an account of the way in which phase diagrams can be used to assist in structural interpretation. The text is supplemented by an extensive number of microstructural studies carried out in the laboratory on ancient and historic metals. The student beginning the study of metallic materials and the conservation scientist who wishes to carry out structural studies of metallic objects of art will find this publication quite useful. Metallography and Microstructure of Ancient and Historic Metals; N85764 D.A. Scott, 1991

Metallography in Archaeology and Art David A. Scott, Roland Schwab, 2019-08-30 This book provides a comprehensive introduction to the metallographic study of ancient metals. Metallography is important both conceptually as a microstructural science and in terms of its application to the study of ancient and historic metals. Metallography is a well-established methodology for the characterization of the microstructure of metals, which continues to be significant today in quality control and characterization of metallic properties. Not only does the metallographic examination of ancient metals present its own challenges in terms of sample size and interpretation of evidence, but it must be integrated with archaeological data and cultural research in order to obtain the most meaningful results. Issues of authentication and the establishment of fakes and forgeries of metallic artefacts often involve metallographic evidence of both metal and patina or corrosion interface as an essential component of such a study. The present volume sets out the basic features of relevant metallic systems, enhanced with a series of examples of typical microstructural types with illustrative case studies and examples throughout the text, derived from studies undertaken by the two authors. This book provides a comprehensive presentation of metallography for archaeologists, archaeometallurgists, conservators, conservation scientists, and metallurgists of modern materials.

Corrosion and conservation of cultural heritage metallic artefacts D.A. Scott, 2013-07-31 Metallographic investigations may be an essential component in the search for authenticity and fabrication technology. Assessing how an artefact is made may involve metallographic examination, usually entailing the removal of a small sample from the object concerned. Examples of the use of metallography are discussed with reference to copper alloys, high tin bronzes, Chinese bronze mirrors, copper plaques, iron and steels, and plated or coated metals such as depletion gilded surfaces or those covered with gold foil or other metals. The different types of features which metallography can reveal concerning ancient metallic structures are briefly discussed with several colour photomicrographs which illustrate the features described in this chapter. The importance of metallography as one component of the scientific tools to aid in the determination of authenticity of ancient metallic artefacts is stressed and an example given of old electrotypes from the Victoria and Albert Museum Important literature references are provided to direct the reader to more detailed studies on the subject

Corrosion and Conservation of Cultural Heritage Metallic Artefacts P Dillmann,D Watkinson,E Angelini,A Adriaens,2013-07-31 The conservation of metallic archaeological and historic artefacts is a major challenge whether they are ancient bronzes or relics of our more recent industrial past Based on the work of Working Party 21 Corrosion of Archaeological and Historical Artefacts within the European Federation of Corrosion EFC this important book summarises key recent research on analytical techniques understanding corrosion processes and preventing the corrosion of cultural heritage metallic artefacts After an introductory part on some of the key issues in this area part two reviews the range of analytical techniques for measuring and analysing corrosion processes including time resolved spectroelectrochemistry voltammetry and laser induced breakdown spectroscopy Part three reviews different types of corrosion processes for a range of artefacts whilst part four discusses on site monitoring techniques The final part of the book summarises a range of conservation techniques and strategies to conserve cultural heritage metallic artefacts Corrosion and conservation of cultural heritage metallic artefacts is an important reference for all those involved in archaeology and conservation including governments museums as well as those undertaking research in archaeology and corrosion science Summarises key research on analytical techniques for measuring and analysing corrosion processes Provides detailed understanding of corrosion processes and corrosion prevention Discusses on site monitoring techniques

Ancient Metals David A. Scott,2011 Metals, Energy and Sustainability Barry Golding,Suzanne D.

Golding,2017-02-26 This book explains how and where copper and fossil fuels were formed and the likely future for the extraction of copper and coal The colourful chronology of our efforts to extract metals from minerals and energy from fossil fuels is presented from earliest times until the present day The difficult concept of human sustainability is examined in the context of continually decreasing real prices of energy and metals This book integrates the latest findings on our historic use of technology to continually produce cheaper metals even though ore grades have been decreasing Furthermore it shows that the rate of technological improvement must increase if metals are to be produced even more cheaply in the future

Archaeometallurgy in Global Perspective Benjamin W. Roberts,Christopher P. Thornton,2014-01-07 The study of ancient metals in their social and cultural contexts has been a topic of considerable interest in archaeology and ancient history for decades partly due to the modern dependence on technology and man made materials The formal study of Archaeometallurgy began in the 1970s 1980s and has seen a recent growth in techniques data and theoretical movements This comprehensive sourcebook on Archaeometallurgy provides an overview of earlier research as well as a review of modern techniques written in an approachable way Covering an extensive range of archaeological time periods and regions this volume will be a valuable resource for those studying archaeology worldwide It provides a clear straightforward look at the available methodologies including Smelting processes Slag analysis Technical Ceramics Archaeology of Mining and Field Survey Ethnoarchaeology Chemical Analysis and Provenance Studies Conservation Studies With chapters focused on most geographic regions of Archaeometallurgical inquiry researchers will find practical applications for metallurgical techniques in any area of their study Ben Roberts is a specialist in the early metallurgy and later prehistoric archaeology of Europe He was the Curator of the European Copper and Bronze Age collections at the British Museum between 2007 and 2012 and is now a Lecturer in Prehistoric Europe in the Department of Archaeology at the Durham University UK Chris Thornton is a specialist in the ancient metallurgy of the Middle East combining anthropological theory with archaeometrical analysis to understand the development and diffusion of metallurgical technologies throughout Eurasia He is currently a Consulting Scholar of the University of Pennsylvania Museum where he received his PhD in 2009 and the Lead Program Officer of research grants at the National Geographic Society
