Sound Citizens Catherine Fisher,2021-06-08 In 1954 Dame Enid Lyons the first woman elected to the Australian House of Representatives argued that radio had created a bigger revolution in the life of a woman than anything that has happened any time as it brought the public sphere into the home and women into the public sphere Taking this claim as its starting point Sound Citizens examines how a cohort of professional women broadcasters activists and politicians used radio to contribute to the public sphere and improve women s status in Australia from the introduction of radio in 1923 until the introduction of television in 1956 This book reveals a much broader and more complex history of women s contributions to Australian broadcasting than has been previously acknowledged Using a rich archive of radio magazines station archives scripts personal papers and surviving recordings Sound Citizens traces how women broadcasters used radio as a tool for their advocacy radio s significance to the history of women s advancement and how broadcasting was used in the development of women s citizenship in Australia It argues that women broadcasters saw radio as a medium that had the potential to transform women s lives and status in society and that they worked to both claim their own voices in the public sphere and to encourage other women to become active citizens Radio provided a platform for women to contribute to public discourse and normalised the presence of women's voices in the public sphere both literally and figuratively
