Mr. Potter of Texas Archibald Clavering Gunter,2015-07-07 Excerpt from Mr Potter of Texas A Novel Sir I have something to tell you My heaven Is there a woman an English woman in this accursed place to night ejaculates the young man to whom she has spoken turning with a start and looking at her in amazed horror but still holding in his hand a revolver the cartridges of which he has been carefully examining I have come all the way from Europe to say to you something of great importance There is nothing of importance now but to save your life My life Is our personal danger so imminent There is death to every European man or woman in this city to night And they deserted you This last is said in surprised astonishment for he has noticed the unusual refinement and beauty of the woman speaking to him the richness of her dress and jewels though she is in the black of deep mourning and the latent appearance of haughty command in her pose notwithstanding there is in her manner and gaze as she addresses him a curious apologetic humility as if she were ashamed of an indefinite something About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Jamaica Kincaid J. Brooks Bouson, 2012-02-01. Haunted by the memories of her powerfully destructive mother, Jamaica Kincaid is a writer out of necessity. Born Elaine Potter Richardson Kincaid grew up in the West Indies in the shadow of her deeply contemptuous and abusive mother Annie Drew. Drawing heavily on Kincaid's many remarks on the autobiographical sources of her writings, J. Brooks Bouson investigates the ongoing construction of Kincaid's autobiographical and political identities. She focuses attention on what many critics find so enigmatic and what lies at the heart of Kincaid's fiction and nonfiction work: the mother mystery. Bouson demonstrates through careful readings how Kincaid uses her writing to transform her feelings of shame into pride as she wins the praise of an admiring critical establishment and an ever-growing reading public.

By exploring the breadth of Jamaica Kincaid's writings, this book reveals her work's transmutations of genre, specifically those of autobiography, biography, and history, in relation to the forces of creation and destruction in the Caribbean. Jana Evans Braziel examines Kincaid's preoccupation with genealogy, genesis, and genocide in the Caribbean, her adaptations of biblical texts for her literary oeuvre, and her authorial deployments of the diabolic as frames for both rethinking the boundaries of genre and altering notions of subjectivity, objectivity, self, and other.
