Multilateralism and Western Strategy Michael J. Brenner, 2016-07-27 The first years of the post Cold War era have made abundantly clear that it is imperative for the Western allies to pursue a common strategy and a concerted diplomacy in order to secure their interests in a still unruly Europe Doing so requires ingenuity in adapting the modes of cooperation inherited from the past and determination in overcoming the parochialisms that have flourished in the wake of the Soviet Union's demise From four national perspectives the authors examine what must be done for a more egalitarian Alliance to act effectively on a multi8U 8Ulateral basis in addressing the new security agenda Multilateralism and Western Strategy

Michael J. Brenner, 1995 The first years of the post Cold War era have made abundantly clear that it is imperative for the Western allies to pursue a common strategy and a concerted diplomacy in order to secure their interests in a still unruly Europe Doing so requires ingenuity from the past and determination in overcoming the parochialisms that have flourished in the wake of the Soviet Union's demise Yugoslavia brings home the twin lessons that peace in a reunited Europe is indivisible and that Western incoherence carries a heavy price in ineffectiveness lost respect and lost control over a potentially turbulent environment From four national perspectives the authors examine what must be done for a more egalitarian Alliance to act effectively on a multilateral basis in addressing the new security agenda They conclude that devising new terms of collaboration depends on innovation in how national policy gets made as well as in how collective business is conducted The EU's trade strategy shift from multilateralism to bilateralism. A case study on TTIP Benedikt

Weingärtner, 2017-06-26 Master's Thesis from the year 2017 in the subject Politics Topic Globalization Political Economics grade sehr gut College of Europe language English abstract Foreign commercial policy represents a major domain of European integration and an exclusive policy competence for the European Union The strategy focus and practical approach of this EU trade policy has been continuously adapted to the new circumstances in an ever more globalised world economy Thus the EU uses its foreign trade policy not just for mere economic ends but also as a tool to strengthen its global political influence Having been a champion of multilateral trade negotiations in the framework of the World Trade Organisation WTO throughout the 1990s the EU has changed this strategic orientation by the mid 2000s shifting its trade policy focus from a multilateral to a bilateral strategy and initiated preferential free trade agreements FTA with countries and regions all over the world Among them the one with the largest size was the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership TTIP with the United States of America launched in 2013 Given the huge importance of the EU as a player in global trade it seems relevant to examine from a political scientific perspective what have been the main reasons drivers and motivations behind this enormous policy shift I argue that external factors domestic interests and institutional dynamics have collectively contributed to the reorientation of EU trade policy from multi to bilateralism I will test this hypothesis by means of three theoretical approaches neorealism as a systemic theory liberalism as a theory with a domestic focus and institutionalism to examine the role of the most important EU institution in trade policy the European Commission In order to get a more profound analysis of the main actors and motivations as driving forces of EU trade policy I will furthermore use a case study on the both in ambition and size unrivalled bilateral Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership as it due to its sheer economic and political impact on the both partners involved but also on the rest of the world provides best significant insights of processes on all three levels of analysis of this paper In a nutshell the global power shift for the benefit of emerging powers and to the detriment of Europe in combination with strong economic interest groups within the EU seeking for market access all over the world as well as self interests norms and processes within the European Commission have altogether contributed to the change of course in EU trade policy towards bilateralism
