This study examines his working methods

Literary Coterries and the Making of Modern Print Culture Betty A. Schellenberg, 2016-06-06 Literary Coterries and the Making of Modern Print Culture offers the first study of manuscript producing coterries as an integral element of eighteenth century Britain's literary culture. As a corrective to literary histories assuming that the dominance of print meant the demise of a vital scribal culture the book profiles four interrelated and influential coterries focusing on each group's deployment of traditional scribal practices on key individuals who served as bridges between networks and on the aesthetic and cultural work performed by the group. The book also explores points of intersection between coterries and the print trade whether in the form of individuals who straddled the two cultures publishing events in which the two media regimes collaborated or came into conflict literary conventions adapted from manuscript practice to serve the ends of print or simply poetry hand copied from magazines. Together these instances demonstrate how scribal modes shaped modern literary production. This title is also available as Open Access The Eighteenth-Century British Verse Epistle B.

Overton, 2007-10-23 This is the first book to cover the whole range of epistolary verse in the period including the discursive type favoured by Pope and the familiar and dramatic epistles. It advances a new model for defining the form demonstrates the form's importance in the period and pays attention to non canonical epistles by women and labouring class writers The Correspondence of Robert Dodsley Robert Dodsley, 2004-01-22 This fully annotated edition sheds much light on eighteenth century British literary and publishing history Index of English Literary Manuscripts, 1998-06-19 This volume the third in the series discusses the works of 11 British 18th century writers providing information on the nature of the MS date variant title's state of completion provenance and location date and first form of publication any scholarly use of the MS and the existence of any published facsimiles. Information is drawn from material in libraries record offices and private collections throughout the world. The listing of each author's manuscripts is preceded by an introduction. The book records many hitherto unrecorded manuscripts Shenstone's Miscellany William Shenstone, 1952 War, State, and Society in Mid-Eighteenth-Century Britain and Ireland Stephen Conway, 2006-01-05 This book explores the impact of the wars of 1739-63 on Britain and Ireland. The period was dominated by armed struggle between Britain and the Bourbon powers particularly France These wars especially the Seven Years War of 1756-63 saw a considerable mobilization of manpower, materiel and money. They had important affects on the British and Irish economies, on social divisions and the development of what we might term social policy, on popular and parliamentary politics, on religion, on national sentiment and on the nature and scale of Britain's overseas possessions and attitudes to empire. To fight these wars partnerships of various kinds were necessary. Partnership with European allies was recognized at least by parts of the political nation to be essential to the pursuit of victory. Partnership with the North American colonies was also seen as imperative to military success. Within Britain and Ireland partnerships were no less important. The peoples of the different nations of the two islands were forced into partnership or entered into it willingly in order to fight the conflicts of the period and to resist Bourbon invasion threats. At the level of high politics the Seven Years War saw the forming of an informal partnership between Whigs and Tories in support of the Pitt Newcastle government's prosecution of the war. The various Protestant denominations established churches and Dissenters were brought into a form of partnership based on Protestant solidarity in the face of the Catholic threat from France and Spain. And perhaps above all partnerships were forged between the British state and local and private interest in order to secure the necessary mobilization of men, resources and money.

Poetic Meaning in the Eighteenth-century Poems of Mark Akenside and William Shenstone Sandro Jung, 2002. In his readings, arguments and discussion in the book Dr Sandro Jung shows himself a knowledgeable guide to the extensive commentary on mid-eighteenth-century poetry not only in English but in French and German. His readers meet many unexpected and novel ideas and judgements in a critical discourse firmly fixed on actual poems rather than convenient and conventional formulas or misleading abstractions.
