Women's Health Jillian M.

Duquaine-Watson,2022-02-15 This interdisciplinary project provides an informative accessible and comprehensive introduction to women s health Emphasizing the perspectives of diverse groups of women it addresses various biological economic social environmental and political factors that influence women s health and well being Women are more likely than men to experience mood disorders certain types of cancer Alzheimer s disease stroke arthritis lupus and celiac disease In addition women face significantly more barriers to health care than men due to a variety of social economic political and environmental factors including inequality poverty legislation and pollution Despite this the field of women s and girls health remains both understudied and underfunded Women s Health Understanding Issues and Influences explores important topics in the field of women s health in the early 21st century offering readers a comprehensive and informative yet accessible introduction to women s health in the United States While some topics are unique to women s health others illustrate how women's health and women's experiences within the U.S. health care system are different from men's as well as how certain health issues impact women differently than men. Entries have been crafted by a diverse team of contributors with wide ranging expertise and each entry features a collection of further readings and cross references to other relevant entries.

Teaching TV Production in a Digital World Robert Kenny, 2001 Here's an exciting alternative approach to teaching first year television production to high school students. A combination of class instruction and independent video action projects prepares students for a year end video competition. The projects are based on the concept of thematic mapping and borrow knowledge from other academic subject areas to teach media and visual literacy, broadcast history, video production skills and multimedia animation. Kenny's exciting alternative approach to teaching first year television production to high school students uses a combination of direct instruction, class discussion and independent and inter disciplinary video action projects to prepare students for a year end video competition. Engaging projects based on the concept of thematic mapping, borrow knowledge and information from other academic subject areas to teach media and visual literacy, broadcast history, video production skills and multimedia animation. The instructor manual is supplemented by a student workbook which introduces students to instructional information through fill in the blanks questioning. The workbooks also contain checklists and background information to aid students in completing the projects.

Resources in Education, 1998 Library Media Connection, 2000 The Teacher's Guide to Media Literacy Cyndy Scheibe, Faith Rogow, 2012 A Deeper Sense of Literacy is the first book to suggest that media literacy is both a content area and an approach to teaching that can be integrated into any subject area. It combines theory and practical application in a way that addresses the most important questions related to media literacy in education today: what is it, why is it important, how can you teach it across a wide range of curriculum areas and grade levels and does it work? Rather than focusing on how to teach media literacy, Scheibe and Rogow focus on actually using media literacy to teach lessons across the content areas.
