Walls, 2025-03-18 Anyone in the Christian church today who is paying attention knows that Roman Catholics are on the march to win converts But what may be surprising is that many of the persons targeted for conversion are not unbelievers and secularists but rather Christians in other traditions particularly evangelical Protestants Those involved in this mission are themselves often converts from evangelical churches and they are zealous to welcome other believers home to the Church of Rome This book provides a variety of reasons to think twice before taking the plunge and swimming the Tiber Among them are some historical considerations that are often ignored or even suppressed by the zealous evangelists for Rome There are also dubious claims by John Henry Newman the famous nineteenth century convert that are often advanced without sufficient critical scrutiny Moreover converts not infrequently take on the role of amateur theologians and advance highly simplistic claims about a variety of theological matters in popular books that are remarkably successful in terms of sales and publicity This volume examines these and other similar claims and subjects them to the critical analysis they demand

Rosemary Radford Ruether,1987     Believing in Belonging Abby Day,2011-10-07 Believing in Belonging draws on empirical research exploring mainstream religious belief and identity in Euro American countries Starting from a qualitative study based in northern England and then broadening the data to include other parts of Europe and North America Abby Day explores how people believe in belonging choosing religious identifications to complement other social and emotional experiences of belongings The concept of performative belief helps explain how otherwise non religious people can bring into being a Christian identity related to social belongings What is often dismissed as nominal religious affiliation is far from an empty category but one loaded with cultural stuff and meaning Day introduces an original typology of natal ethnic and aspirational nominalism that challenges established disciplinary theory in both the European and North American schools of the sociology of religion that assert that most people are unchurched or believe without belonging while privately maintaining beliefs in God and other spiritual phenomena This study provides a unique analysis and synthesis of anthropological and sociological understandings of belief and proposes a holistic organic multidimensional analytical framework to allow rich cross cultural comparisons Chapters focus in particular on the genealogies of belief in anthropology and sociology methods for researching belief without asking religious questions the acts of claiming cultural identity youth gender the social supernatural fate and agency morality and a development of anthropocentric and theocentric orientations that provides a richer understanding of belief than conventional religious secular distinctions     The Reformation, subject Theology Islamic theology Leuven Catholic University course LEST XIV 60 Years Vatican II The End of the Western Church language English abstract Vatican II and its progressive declaration of the Roman Catholic Church in dealing with other religions Nostra Aetate meant a turning point for the traditional Christian non Christian relationship This traditionally mostly negative relationship between the Catholic Church and other religions was now radically discussed anew and put on another scale with the aim of an improvement between all religions A special focus hereby was put on a new approach with Judaism and above all Islam The history between Islam and Christianity for centuries was accompanied by political and religious conflicts and wars which were marked by the notions of jihad and crusade It was in this antagonistic atmosphere where the famous four Cs of the West Conquest Commerce Civilization and Christianity were followed by terrorism and fundamentalism on the Muslim side Fundamental thinking in fact has not left the relationship between Islam and Christianity and the attitude to the West and Christianity in the Muslim world have turned to a more radical attitude since the Shah was overthrown in 1979 in Iran One can take this date as the beginning of events such as 9 11 the Gulf Wars or the wars in Afghanistan and Syria where the Islamic State proclaimed a new and even more radical era between Islam and Christianity with the establishment of the caliphate the geographical political and religious expression of fundamental Islamic thinking Things have not yet improved to the better since developments like globalization processes are presently challenging traditional religions with a tendency to fundamental thinking as the seemingly best adapted form of the religious in times of globalization and massive migration waves due to war poverty hunger or environment pollution All these developments are constantly challenging the positive basis of an interreligious dialogue between Muslims and Christians which during the last sixty years was marked by progress and regression on both sides alike
