Parallel Lisp activities in the US and Japan were explained. Work covered includes Multilisp and MuLisp at MIT, Qlisp at Stanford, Lucid and Parcel at Illinois, PaiLisp at Tohoku University, Multiprocessor Lisp on TOP 1 at IBM Tokyo Research and concurrent programming in TAO. Most papers present languages and systems of Parallel Lisp and are in particular concerned with Language constructs of Parallel Lisp and their meanings from the standpoint of implementing Parallel Lisp systems. Some important technical issues such as parallel garbage collection, dynamic task partitioning, futures and continuations in parallelism, automatic parallelization of Lisp programs and the kernel concept of Parallel Lisp. Some performance results are reported that suggest practical applicability of Parallel Lisp systems in the near future. Several papers on concurrent object oriented systems are also included.

Artificial and Mathematical Theory of Computation Vladimir Lifschitz, 2012-12-02

Artificial and Mathematical Theory of Computation is a collection of papers that discusses the technical, historical and philosophical problems related to artificial intelligence and the mathematical theory of computation. Papers cover the logical approach to artificial intelligence, knowledge representation and common sense reasoning, automated deduction, logic programming, nonmonotonic reasoning and circumscription. One paper suggests that the design of parallel programming languages will invariably become more sophisticated as human skill in programming and software developments improves to attain faster running programs. An example of metaprogramming to systems concerns the design and control of operations of factory devices such as robots and numerically controlled machine tools. Metaprogramming involves two design aspects: that of the activity of a single device and that of the interaction with other devices. One paper cites the application of artificial intelligence pertaining to the project proof checker for first order logic at the Stanford Artificial Intelligence Laboratory. Another paper explains why the bisection algorithm, widely used in computer science, does not work. This book can prove valuable to engineers and researchers of electrical computer and mechanical engineering as well as for computer programmers and designers of industrial processes.

High-Performance Computing and Networking, 1994

High performance computing and networking (HPCN) is driven by several initiatives in Europe, the United States and Japan. In Europe, several groups encouraged the Commission of the European Communities to start an HPCN programme. This two volume work presents the proceedings of HPCN Europe 1994. Volume 2 includes sections on networking, future European cooperative working possibilities in industry and research, HPCN computer centers, aspects of performance evaluation and benchmarking, numerical algorithms for engineering domain decomposition, in engineering, parallel programming environments, load balancing and performance optimization, monitoring, debugging and fault tolerance, programming languages in HPC compilers and data parallel structures, architectural aspects and late papers.

SimPL: A Simulator for Parallel LISP. Lisa Penninger, CALIFORNIA UNIV BERKELEY DEPT OF ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING AND COMPUTER SCIENCE., 1987. In spite of the great interest in speeding up programs by using parallelism, few convenient parallel machines are available and those may not have the types of parallelism that might be of most benefit. This paper describes a simulator.

written in Common Lisp that provides a method for experimenting with varying amounts of explicit programmer specified parallelism and gathering information about the efficiency of such programs if they were to be run on a parallel processor The system chosen for simulation is Multilisp 7 8 Its parallel constructs are quite simple and rely heavily on the programmer to decide on their efficient and correct use Multilisp is explained in a later section of this paper however a working knowledge of some dialect of LISP is assumed Compiler Construction Uwe Kastens,Peter Pfahler,1992-09-23 The International Workshop on Compiler Construction provides a forum for thepresentation and discussion of recent developments in the area of compiler construction Its scope ranges from compilation methods and tools to implementation techniques for specific requirements of languages and target architectures This volume contains the papers selected for presentation at the 4th International Workshop on Compiler Construction CC 92 held in Paderborn Germany October 5 7 1992 The papers present recent developments on such topics as structural and semantic analysis code generation and optimization and compilation for parallel architectures and for functional logical and application languages Parallel Processing for Artificial Intelligence Laveen N. Kanal,1994 Parallel processing for AI problems is of great current interest because of its potential for alleviating the computational demands of AI procedures The articles in this book consider parallel processing for problems in several areas of artificial intelligence image processing knowledge representation in semantic networks production rules mechanization of logic constraint satisfaction parsing of natural language data filtering and data mining The publication is divided into six sections The first addresses parallel computing for processing and understanding images The second discusses parallel processing for semantic networks which are widely used means for representing knowledge methods which enable efficient and flexible processing of semantic networks are expected to have high utility for building large scale knowledge based systems The third section explores the automatic parallel execution of production systems which are used extensively in building rule based expert systems systems containing large numbers of rules are slow to execute and can significantly benefit from automatic parallel execution The exploitation of parallelism for the mechanization of logic is dealt with in the fourth section While sequential control aspects pose problems for the parallelization of production systems logic has a purely declarative interpretation which does not demand a particular evaluation strategy In this area therefore very large search spaces provide significant potential for parallelism In particular this is true for automated theorem proving The fifth section considers the problem of constraint satisfaction which is a useful abstraction of a number of important problems in AI and other fields of computer science It also discusses the technique of consistent labeling as a preprocessing step in the constraint satisfaction problem Section VI consists of two articles each on a different important topic The first discusses parallel formulation for the Tree Adjoining Grammar TAG which is a powerful formalism for describing natural languages The second examines the suitability of a parallel programming paradigm called Linda for solving problems in artificial intelligence Each of the areas discussed in the book holds many open problems but it is believed that parallel processing will form a key ingredient in achieving at least partial solutions It is hoped that the contributions sourced from experts around the world will inspire readers to take on these challenging areas of inquiry
