Excerpt from Mines and Mining in the Black Hills South Dakota as a state presents some striking features In the matter of altitude there are wide divergencies Big Stone Lake is only 967 feet above sea level nearly 200 feet lower than Omaha and Harney Peak towers up feet There are plains as level as a floor along James river valley and narrow canons hundreds of feet deep in the Black Hills There are areas where for scores of square miles one searches in vain for a stone and there are districts which present an almost unbroken surface of rock and barren places there are which are so saturated with acids and mineral solutions as to be utterly worthless and again there are a few ancient lake beds forever decaying barren and desolate Bad Lands as they are aptly termed The Black Hills proper have an area of about square miles and their true limit is marked distinctly by a sharp ridge of sandstone 300 to 600 feet in height This ridge is separated from the higher part of the Hills within by Red valley The altitude of the Hills runs from 3 500 to feet Ten of the geologic ages are represented in the rock formation of this wonderful region and the scientists say that but two of the universal organic elements are lacking here and that this condition does not exist anywhere else in the world About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
