Minding The Carbon Store:

Minding the Carbon Store Mark C. Trexler, 1991 Designing Low Carbon Societies in Landscapes Nobukazu Nakagoshi, Jhonamie A. Mabuhay, 2014-05-09 This book focuses on three major means of achieving a low carbon society conservation of the ecosystem complex changes of arrangement of landscapes and creation of biodiversity There are specific countermeasures to be taken for carbon absorption in the three types of landscapes urban cultural and natural because their carbon balances differ Urban landscapes are promising sites because they have the potential for greening and the creation of biodiversity Cultural landscapes in the tropics had not been actively researched until recently but this book now presents a collection of several cases focused on those areas Natural landscapes had existed in abundance in developing countries later nature protection areas were designated to coexist with development Now however developmental pressure has penetrated into those nature protection areas and landscape ecological projects are urgently required to preserve them As a result of global warming abnormal weather phenomena including super typhoons have occurred frequently in recent years The major underlying cause is the higher concentration of greenhouse gases released by human activities As well major natural absorbers of CO₂ such as forests wetlands and coral reefs are shrinking and the human impact is causing the ecological balance to deteriorate Controlling CO₂ emissions and expanding the CO₂ absorbers are keys to reducing total CO₂ Low carbon societies can be established by maintaining the original CO₂ balance through integration of multiple tools with contributions from diverse fields such as physics and chemistry physiology and humanities and education On the basis of an international consensus the environment must be protected no matter what sacrifices are required As this book demonstrates achieving a low carbon society is a top priority and landscape conservation is the first step in ecological research toward that goal Terrestrial Biospheric Carbon Fluxes Quantification of Sinks and Sources of CO₂ Joe Wisniewski, R. Neil Sampson, 2012-12-06 Towards the Balance and Management of the Carbon Budget of the Biosphere The current state of misunderstanding of the global C cycle and our failure to resolve an issue that has been debated for 100 years Jones and Henderson Sellers 1990 speaks loudly about the limitations of modern science when faced with the complexity of the biosphere Efforts to understand and balance the global C budget have gone through several phases First was a holistic view of the C budget as part of efforts to understand the geochemistry of the Earth e.g. Clarke 1908 Next came a period of data collection and synthesis which focused on the diversity of sectors of the biosphere This phase culminated in the early 1970s with the realization that humans were greatly impacting the global C cycle as measured at the Mauna Loa Observatory Keeling et al 1973 New syntheses of the global C budget emerged at this time Woodwell and Pacan 1973 Bolin et al 1979 The next phase was one of controversy and intense focus on particular sectors of the biosphere The controversy rested on discrepancies about the role of the terrestrial biota in the global C cycle and the failure to account for sufficient C sinks to absorb all the C emitted by land use change in the tropics Woodwell et al 1978 1983 Houghton et al 1983 Forest

Ecosystems, Forest Management and the Global Carbon Cycle Michael J. Apps, David T. Price, 2013-06-29 Globally forest vegetation and soils are both major stores of terrestrial organic carbon and major contributors to the annual cycling of carbon between the atmosphere and the biosphere Forests are also a renewable resource vital to the everyday existence of millions of people since they provide food shelter fuel raw materials and many other benefits The combined effects of an expanding global population and increasing consumption of resources however may be seriously endangering both the extent and future sustainability of the world's forests About thirty chapters cover four main themes the role of forests in the global carbon cycle effects of past present and future changes in forest land use the role of forest management products and biomass on carbon cycling and socio economic impacts Forest Watch, 1989 General Technical Report RMRS, 2000

Getting it Right Michael Totten, 1999 Getting it Right is part of initial research mounted by Forest Trends in conjunction with the World Resources Institute We have tried in the pages that follow to set out the potential for businesses and the environmental community to find common solutions that use forests to mitigate the climate warming dangers of greenhouse gases While there are a number of outstanding issues to be resolved around measurement time frames methodologies and verification the momentum to create a market for forests as sinks of carbon emissions is clearly accelerating The Impact of Climate Change on America's Forests L. A. Joyce, Richard A. Birdsey, 2000 Abstract This report documents trends and impacts of climate change on America's forests as required by the Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974 Recent research on the impact of climate and elevated atmospheric carbon dioxide on plant productivity is synthesized Modeling analyses explore the potential impact of climate changes on forests wood products and carbon in the United States
