1,000,000...

It is very easy to talk about "millions" or "billions," without fully realizing just how huge it is. In fact, just one million dots is a million dots. That means, since one dot passes every second, it would take 1,000,000 seconds for one million dots to pass. But can you find other ways to think of a million squares?

• If each dot is a second, how long is one million seconds?

• If each dot is a piece, how much would you get if you took a million pieces?

• If each dot is a dot, how many would you need to make a million dots?

• If each dot is a person, how big would a million people fit in a room?

• If each dot is a book of 1,000, how many books would it take to count a million books of 1,000?

• If each dot is a sugar cube, how many cubes would it take to count a million sugar cubes?

Did you notice?

Each small square on this poster is made up of 100 dots!

Celebrity James Monaco,1978 Iconography of Power Victoria E. Bonnell,1998-02-05 Masters at visual propaganda the Bolsheviks produced thousands of vivid and compelling posters after they seized power in October 1917 Intended for a semi literate population that was accustomed to the rich visual legacy of the Russian autocracy and the Orthodox Church political posters came to occupy a central place in the regime s effort to imprint itself on the hearts and minds of the people and to remold them into the new Soviet women and men In this first sociological study of Soviet political posters Victoria Bonnell analyzes the shifts that took place in the images messages styles and functions of political art from 1917 to 1953 Everyone who lived in Russia after the October revolution had some familiarity with stock images of the male worker the great communist leaders the collective farm woman the capitalist and others These were the new icons standardized images that depicted Bolshevik heroes and their adversaries in accordance with a fixed pattern Like other invented traditions of the modern age iconographic images in propaganda art were relentlessly repeated bringing together Bolshevik ideology and traditional mythologies of pre Revolutionary Russia Symbols and emblems featured in Soviet posters of the Civil War and the 1920s gave visual meaning to the Bolshevik worldview dominated by the concept of class Beginning in the 1930s visual propaganda became more prescriptive providing models for the appearance demeanor and conduct of the new social types both positive and negative Political art also conveyed important messages about the sacred center of the regime which evolved during the 1930s from the celebration of the heroic proletariat to the deification of Stalin Treating propaganda images as part of a particular visual language Bonnell shows how people read them relying on their habits of seeing and interpreting folk religious commercial and political art both before and after 1917 as well as the fine art traditions of Russia and the West Drawing on monumental sculpture and holiday displays as well as posters the study traces the way Soviet propaganda art shaped the mentality of the Russian people the legacy is present even today and was itself shaped by popular attitudes and assumptions Iconography of Power includes posters dating from the final decades of the old regime to the death of Stalin located by the author in Russian American and English libraries and archives One hundred exceptionally striking posters are reproduced in the book many of them never before published Bonnell places these posters in a historical context and provides a provocative account of the evolution of the visual discourse on power in Soviet Russia
