Native American Architecture Peter Nabokov, Robert Easton, 1990-10-25 For many people Native American architecture calls to mind the wigwam tipi iglu and pueblo Yet the richly diverse building traditions of Native Americans encompass much more including specific structures for sleeping working worshipping meditating playing dancing lounging giving birth decision making cleansing storing and preparing food caring for animals and honoring the dead In effect the architecture covers all facets of Indian life The collaboration between an architect and an anthropologist Native American Architecture presents the first book length fully illustrated exploration of North American Indian architecture to appear in over a century Peter Nabokov and Robert Easton together examine the building traditions of the major tribes in nine regional areas of the continent from the huge plank house villages of the Northwest Coast to the moundbuilder towns and temples of the Southeast to the Navajo hogans and adobe pueblos of the Southwest Going beyond a traditional survey of buildings the book offers a broad clear view into the Native American world revealing a new perspective on the interaction between their buildings and culture Looking at Native American architecture as more than buildings villages and camps Nabokov and Easton also focus on their use of space their environment their social mores and their religious beliefs Each chapter concludes with an account of traditional Indian building practices undergoing a revival or in danger today The volume also includes a wealth of historical photographs and drawings including sixteen pages of color illustrations architectural renderings and specially prepared interpretive diagrams which decode the sacred cosmology of the principal house types

Iroquoian Archaeology and Analytic Scale Laurie E. Miroff, Timothy D. Knapp, 2009 A more robust archaeological interpretation can be produced if a multiscalar approach is brought to bear on the study of the past In Iroquoian Archaeology and Analytic Scale ten contributors conducting studies of groups centered around New York State and southern Ontario present contemporary research focused not only on examining the role of scale and how it impacts the field of Iroquoian studies but also how archaeologists studying other Native Americans can expand their own research Specifically the contributors employ a variety of spatial temporal and methodological scales to reveal patterns and insights into the cultural interactions that might otherwise be missed by a less multiscalar approach Furthermore the diversity of research spans nearly a millennium from A D 900 to 1800 and encompasses several different topographical settings including major river floodplains upland headwater areas and terraces along smaller tributaries yielding a plethora of current findings from the largest of villages to the smallest of seasonal campsites Laurie E Miroff and Timothy D Knapp have organized these essays in roughly chronological fashion and provide an introduction that addresses the importance of a multiscalar analysis This volume of Iroquoian specific yet wide ranging essays will be of interest to anyone specializing in Native American studies in the Northeast It will also benefit archaeologists who wish to gain a better understanding of how using a multiscalar approach in their own research can be an integral step toward a more dynamic view of the Native American lived experience Laurie E Miroff is an adjunct professor of anthropology at Binghamton University and a project director at the Public Archaeology Facility Binghamton University She is associate editor of Northeast Anthropology and her articles have appeared in Northeast Historical Archaeology and other journals Timothy D Knapp is Assistant to the Director for Prehistoric Research at the Public Archaeology Facility at Binghamton University
