

Linear vs Nonlinear Molecules

Feature	Linear Molecules	Non-Linear Molecules
Geometry	Straight line arrangement of atoms	Atoms arranged in a non-linear fashion (bent, trigonal pyramidal, tetrahedral, etc.)
Bond Angle(s)	180 degrees	Varies depending on the geometry (e.g., ~104.5 degrees for water, 109.5 degrees for methane)
Hybridization (Central Atom)	Typically sp	sp^2 , sp^3 , or higher
Polarity	Can be polar or nonpolar (depends on the symmetry and bond polarities)	Often polar (due to asymmetry)
Examples	CO_2 , HCN , Acetylene (C_2H_2)	H_2O , NH_3 , CH_4 , SO_2
Intermolecular Forces	Can exhibit London dispersion forces, dipole-dipole interactions (if polar), or hydrogen bonding (if hydrogen is bonded to a highly electronegative atom)	Can exhibit London dispersion forces, dipole-dipole interactions, and hydrogen bonding (if present)
Boiling Point	Generally lower than non-linear molecules of similar molecular weight (unless strong dipole-dipole interactions or hydrogen bonding are present)	Generally higher than linear molecules of similar molecular weight (due to stronger intermolecular forces)
Reactivity	Reactivity depends on specific molecule and the atoms involved.	Reactivity depends on specific molecule and the atoms involved. Steric hindrance can play a larger role.

Nonlinear Behavior Of Molecules Atoms :

Nonlinear Behaviour of Molecules, Atoms, and Ions in Electric, Magnetic, Or Electromagnetic Fields Société de chimie physique, Associazione italiana di chimica fisica, Deutsche Bunsen-Gesellschaft für Physikalische Chemie, 1979 Theory of Atomic and Molecular Clusters Julius Jellinek, 2012-12-06 The emergence and spectacularly rapid evolution of the field of atomic and molecular clusters are among the most exciting developments in the recent history of natural sciences. The field of clusters expands into the traditional disciplines of physics, chemistry, materials science and biology, yet in many respects it forms a cognition area of its own. This book presents a cross section of theoretical approaches and their applications in studies of different cluster systems. The contributions are written by experts in the respective areas. The systems discussed range from weakly van der Waals bonded through hydrogen and covalently bonded to semiconductor and metallic clusters. The theoretical approaches involve high level electronic structure computations, more approximate electronic structure treatments, use of semiempirical potentials, dynamical and statistical analyses, and illustrate the utility of both classical and quantum mechanical concepts.

Advances in Atomic, Molecular, and Optical Physics, 2003-11-21 This series, established in 1965, is concerned with recent developments in the general area of atomic, molecular, and optical physics. The field is in a state of rapid growth as new experimental and theoretical techniques are used on many old and new problems. Topics covered include related applied areas such as atmospheric science, astrophysics, surface physics, and laser physics. Articles are written by distinguished experts who are active in their research fields. The articles contain both relevant review material and detailed descriptions of important recent developments.

Ion Beam Processing of Materials and Deposition Processes of Protective Coatings P.L.F. Hemment, Yves Pauleau, J. Gyulai, R.B. Simonton, I. Yamada, J.-P. Thomas, P. Thévenard, W.L.

Brown, P.B. Barna, G. Wahl, 2012-12-02 Containing the proceedings of three symposia in the E MRS series, this book is divided into two parts. Part one is concerned with ion beam processing, a particularly powerful and versatile technology which can be used both to synthesise and modify materials including metals, semiconductors, ceramics and dielectrics with great precision and excellent control. Furthermore, it also deals with the correlated effects in atomic and cluster ion bombardment and implantation. Part two deals with the deposition techniques, characterization and applications of advanced ceramic, metallic and polymeric coatings or thin films for surface protection against corrosion, erosion, abrasion, diffusion and for lubrication of contracting surfaces in relative motion.

Small Scale Optics Preecha Yupapin, Jalil Ali, 2013-08-28 The behavior of light in small scale optics or nano micro optical devices has shown promising results which can be used for basic and applied research especially in nanoelectronics. Small Scale Optics presents the use of optical nonlinear behaviors for spins antennae and whispering gallery modes within micro nano devices and circuits which can be used in many applications This book proposes a new design for a small scale optical device a microring resonator device Most chapters are based on the proposed device which uses a configuration known as a PANDA ring resonator Analytical and numerical methods demonstrate that many applications can be exploited using this device in particular when it is coated with metallic material The book begins with the background and description of the PANDA ring resonator The authors examine optical bistability in microring resonators and test the analytical results with those predicted by the OptiFDTD software package They then describe their new design for a microring resonator device which can be used to generate four forms of light on a chip while also allowing the storing and harvesting of trapped atoms molecules The four behaviors of light for instance fast slow stopping and storing can be manipulated and seen simultaneously by using the PANDA ring planar waveguide which can be fabricated and tested on chip Chapters examine optical spin nano antennas optical mesh networks micro optical gyroscopes and spin transport networks They also address applications for optical devices including molecular motors for drug discovery short pulse lasers for treatment of cancer microsurgery nano antenna use in radiotherapy and neuron cell communications There are many other possibilities of applications for the PANDA ring resonator such as quantum coding optical tweezers and stopping light which will play an important role in future optical devices Catalog of National Bureau of Standards Publications, 1966-1976 United States.
