

This is a moment of prayer and also a moment of deep meditation. Consider your ways all this while and pour out your hearts before Him in prayer and in supplication. Plead with Him for mercy and for compassion. If you have erred, plead with Him for pardon, perchance there will be hope of full and complete salvation for all of us in the end.

French Reflections in the Shakespearean Tragic Richard Hillman, 2018-07-30 Hillman explores English tragedy in relation to France with a frank concentration on Shakespeare He sets out to theorise more abstract tragic qualities such as nostalgia futility and heroism with reference to specific French texts and contexts Three manifestations of the Shakespearean tragic are singled out Hamlet Antony and Cleopatra and All s Well That Ends Well a comedy with melancholic overtones whose French setting is shown to be richly significant Hillman brings to bear on each of these central works a cluster of French intertextual echoes sometimes literary in origin whether dramatic or otherwise sometimes involving historical texts memoirs or contemporary political documents which have no obvious connection with the plays but prove capable of enriching interpretation of them It will be of interest not only to scholars specialising in early modern English theatre but also to both specialists and students concerned with the circulation of information and the production of meaning within early modern European culture
