Lymphatic Tissue and Germinal Centers in Immune Response ,1969      Germinal Centers in Immune Responses Hans Cottier,N. Odartchenko,R. Schindler,C.C. Gongdon,2012-12-06 In the last few years the study of germinal centers of the lymphoid tissue has progressed at an accelerated pace Questions about their role and their significance in immune responses that could not be answered mainly because of technical limitations are presently approached experimentally from many different directions Hypotheses some more than half a century old receive renewed attention At this time members of the Biology Division Oak Ridge National Laboratory U S A and of the Institute of Pathology University of Bern Switzerland decided to bring together workers interested in the field The Conference was held in Bern June 22 24 1966 and included fifty seven contributions which were discussed at length The range of interest extended from phylogenesis and anatomy to studies on cell proliferation immunohistochemistry cancer research and radiobiology The aim of this broad coverage was to combine all available information on the role of germinal centers in immune responses in a single package instead of leaving it scattered around in reports dealing with divergent immunological problems This attempt is reflected in the present book A rather large space has been devoted to the lively discussions which followed the reports the volume of most of which had been voluntarily limited The discussions are not reported verbatim but care has been taken to insure neutrality and objectivity in the necessary adaptation of the shortened transcription We have been very fortunate indeed to have Drs

Lymphatic tissue and germinal centers in immune response : proceedings L. Fiore-Donati,1969 The realization of essential cellular interactions in the immune response convokes a better understanding of the fixed and free cellular components of lymphatic tissue Germinal centers of lymphatic tissue have long been considered to have a fundamental role in the immune reaction and have been suspected of being topographic regions where some of these essential cellular interactions may occur The physiological significance of these topographic regions in lymphatic tissue is only now becoming clarified from recent studies of antigen localization but the histogenic relation of the cellular compartments still needs to be resolved This book represents the Proceedings of the Second International Conference on Lymphatic Tissue Germinal Centers held at the University of Padova Padova Italy June 26 28 1968 The aim of the meeting was to bring together current information on the physiological significance of germinal centers in lymphatic tissue and their possible role in the immune response The range of interests extended from phylogenesis and morphology to studies of antigen and viral localization cytokinetics and cytodifferentiation immunochemistry and immunosuppression The interactions of central lymphoid organs such as the thymus and bursa are studies having an essential role in these Proceedings Also several studies deal with lymphatic tissue germinal centers in delayed hypersensitivity and neoplastic disease The effects of immunosuppressive drugs antilymphocyte serum radiation and hormones on lymphatic tissue and germinal centers are also areas covered in these Proceedings
