Lost in Canada Lydia

Perovic,2022-04-30 In the late 1990s culture writer Lydia Perovi immigrated from Montenegro to the open optimistic country of Canada and threw herself into its vibrant artistic and cultural communities She was happy with her decision until about five years ago when Canada began to change It turned inward lost its will to be a nation and a culture and grew increasingly illiberal in speech and imagination At the same time Perovi noticed that Canadian arts journalism and criticism began to disappear leaving her colleagues to take their expertise in topics like literature and opera to the United States or even to real estate journalism Just as she felt she was losing her country Perovi lost her mother and found herself at a crossroads questioning all of her life choices Is she really a Canadian Is the Canadian project a lost cause What is a life without a national culture Why is it so difficult to find oneself an orphan in middle age In the company of Janet Ajzenstat Charles Taylor Northrop Frye and Alice Munro Perovi explores some of the most profound questions of our times Is it possible to feel at home anywhere anymore Are meaningful lives and lasting friendships the inevitable casualties of our precarious political environment ethnocentrism and global media platforms Lost in Canada is a shrewd and moving account of one immigrant's second thoughts about her second home and a call for all Canadians to think harder about the future of their country and its culture The Canadian Veterinary Record ,1922 House Divided Alex Bozickovic,Cheryll Case,John Lorinc,Annabel
