Oldtidens Ansigt Faces Of The Past:

Beautiful Bodies Uroš Matić, 2022-02-24 This book explores the role of material culture in the formation of corporeal aesthetics and beauty ideals in different past societies and thus contributes to the cultural relativization of bodily aesthetics and related gender norms The volume does not explore beauty for the sake of beauty but extensively explores how it serves to form and keep gender norms in place The concept of beauty has been a topic of interest for some time yet it is only in recent times that archaeologists have begun to approach beauty as a culturally contingent and socially constructed phenomenon Although archaeologists and ancient historians extensively dealt with gender they dealt less with it in relation to beauty The contributions in this volume deal with different intersections of gender and corporeal aesthetics by turning to rich archaeological textual and iconographic data from ancient Sumer Aegean Bronze Age ancient Egypt ancient Athens Roman provinces the Viking world and the Qajar Iran Beauty thus moves away from a curiosity and surface of the body to an analytic concept for a better understanding of past and present societies Oldtidens ansigt Poul Kjærum, Rikke Agnete Olsen, 1990

Handbook of Pre-Modern Nordic Memory Studies Jürg Glauser, Pernille Hermann, Stephen A. Mitchell, 2018-11-19 In recent years the field of Memory Studies has emerged as a key approach in the Humanities and Social Sciences and has increasingly shown its ability to open new windows on Nordic Studies as well The entries in this book document the work to date of this approach on the pre modern Nordic world mainly the Viking Age and the Middle Ages but including as well both earlier and later periods Given that Memory Studies is an ever expanding critical strategy the approximately eighty contributors in this volume also discuss the potential for future research in this area Topics covered range from texts to performance to visual and other aspects of material culture all approached from within an interdisciplinary framework International specialists coming from such relevant fields as archaeology mythology history of religion folklore history law art literature philology language and mediality offer assessments on the relevance of Memory Studies to their disciplines and show it at work in case studies Finally this handbook demonstrates the various levels of culture where memory had a critical impact in the pre modern North and how deeply embedded the role of memory is in the material itself Performing Magic in the Pre-Modern North Jennifer Hemphill, Ségdæ Richardson-Read, Solveig Marie Wang, 2024-11-30

This book addresses the varied performances of magic in medieval and early modern Scandinavia It provides a comprehensive review of the rapidly expanding field of European magic and specifically discusses performances of magic in the pre modern north By employing innovating methodologies and covering a wide temporal range the book offers a uniquely interdisciplinary approach to the study of magic in the pre modern North In addition the minority driven contributions written by an international group of dynamic and diverse scholars complement one another to highlight the many multicultural realities of the pre modern North Making One's Way in the World Martin Bell, 2020-02-28 The book draws on the evidence of landscape archaeology palaeoenvironmental studies ethnohistory and animal tracking to address the neglected topic of how we identify and interpret past patterns of movement in the landscape. It challenges the pessimism of previous generations which regarded prehistoric routes such as hollow ways as generally undatable. The premise is that archaeologists tend to focus on sites while neglecting the patterns of habitual movement that made them part of living landscapes. Evidence of past movement is considered in a multi-scalar way from the individual footprint to the long distance path including the traces created in vegetation by animal and human movement. It is argued that routes may be perpetuated over long timescales creating landscape structures which influence the activities of subsequent generations. In other instances radical changes of axes of communication and landscape structures provide evidence of upheaval and social change. Palaeoenvironmental and ethnohistorical evidence from the American North West coast sets the scene with evidence for the effects of burning, animal movement, faeces deposition and translocation which can create readable routes along which are favoured resources. Evidence from European hunter-gatherer sites hints at similar practices of niche construction on a range of spatial scales. On a local scale footprints help to establish axes of movement, the locations of lost settlements and activity areas. Wood trackways likewise provide evidence of favoured patterns of movement and past settlement location. Among early farming communities alignments of burial mounds, enclosure entrances and other monuments indicate axes of communication. From the middle Bronze Age in Europe there is more clearly defined evidence of trackways flanked by ditches and fields. Landscape scale survey and excavation enables the dating of trackways using spatial relationships with dated features and many examples indicate long-term continuity of routeways. Where fields flank routeways a range of methods including scientific approaches provide dates. Prehistorians have often assumed that Ridgeways provided the main axes of early movement but there is little evidence for their early origins and rather better evidence for early routes crossing topography and providing connections between different environmental zones. The book concludes with a case study of the Weald of South East England which demonstrates that some axes of cross-topographic movement used as droveways and generally considered as early medieval can be shown to be of prehistoric origin. One reason that dryland routes have proved difficult to recognise is that insufficient attention has been paid to the parts played by riverine and maritime longer distance communication. It is argued that understanding the origins of the paths we use today contributes to appreciation of the distinctive qualities of landscapes. Appreciation will help to bring about effective strategies for conservation of mutual benefit to people and wildlife by maintaining and enhancing corridors of connectivity between different landscape zones including fragmented nature reserves and valued places. In these ways an understanding of past routeways can contribute to sustainable landscapes, communities and quality of life.

Gemini and the Sacred Kimberley C. Patton, 2022-10-06

Why do twins remain uncanny to those born alone in other words most of us? Even with the rise of IVF and an increase in multiple births why do we still do a double take when we encounter twins? Why has this been a near universal response throughout human history and how has it played out in religion and myth? Through the work of leading scholars in religion, folklore and mythology history anthropology and archaeology Gemini and the Sacred explores how twinship has long been imagined especially in the complex relationship of sacred twin traditions to twins on the ground in biology and lived experience The book considers the multiple ways in which the doubling of a human being may be interpreted as auspicious and powerful or suppressed as unstable and dangerous Why has this been so and how does it affect living twins today Treating both famous and lesser known twins including supernatural animal twins in the ancient Near Eastern and classical Mediterranean worlds early Christianity and Gnosticism Vedic Hindu West African Black Atlantic and native American traditions ancient Mesoamerica Celtic Roman Britain and Scandinavia and in the special fraught bond shared by all twins the book offers a variety of perspectives on this topic of great cultural significance      Northern Emporium Søren M. Sindbæk, 2023-02-23 This is the second and final volume presenting the results of the Northern Emporium research project and the high definition excavations carried out within this programme in 2017-18 in Ribe The 22 chapters survey the remarkable range of finds retrieved from this hub of the North Sea world in the eighth and ninth centuries AD artefacts made from pottery stone shell glass metals amber leather wood textile bone and antler They offer detailed insights that highlight discoveries such as the assemblages from glass bead or comb making workshops and rare finds such as wooden furnishings and musical instruments The focus of the book is on assembling Ribe's early urban network By analysing finds and their context we develop a picture of social roles and interactions between residents and visitors in the emporium And we follow the connections they created with other worlds as we trace the flows of glass vessels pottery and wine barrels from Western Europe iron stone and animal products from North and Central Scandinavia and beads and coins that travelled from the Middle East and the Indian Ocean into northern Europe's new maritime frontier      Excavations at Helgö Kungl. Madsen, 1981 This is the fifth and last volume in a series presenting the results of one of Scandinavia's most important excavations carried out in the town of Ribe in southern Denmark from 1970-76. There, researchers extracted remains of a permanent settlement and marketplace founded in 704-710. The findings revealed an 8th-century trading site of a character never seen before in the Scandinavian region, and this has put Denmark in a new light in North European development of this period. Volume 5 compares the results of the excavations in the 1970s with those made in the following decade. A team of scholars from the humanities and natural sciences have contributed articles that examine different perspectives of the subject. Like the entire series, the present volume, containing rich material from the little-known 8th century in Scandinavia, is an important contribution to research in the history of civilization.
