Ordeal Of The African Writer:

The Ordeal of the African Writer Charles Larson, 2001-08-01 The literatures of the English language experienced an extraordinary transformation in the second half of the 20th century as a result of the creative energy released by decolonization. But as this book demonstrates only a small number of African writers Chinua Achebe Ben Okri Nuruddin Farah and Wole Soyinka have become known outside their own continent. They also face and this is the subject of this book enormous obstacles within Africa getting their work published let alone supporting themselves financially from their writing. Charles R Larson has followed African literature for nearly 40 years. Here he combines writers own testimony pen portraits of their lives and factual investigation in order to explore the dimensions of the problem. Who is the readership in Africa. In what language should an African writer write. What obstacles do African publishing houses face and how do they treat their authors. What has been the response of publishing houses in Europe and America. How does economic crisis and political repression make the situation more difficult. And most importantly can anything be done to build a more supportive environment in which the Continent's new writers can produce and publish their work. This book takes the reader into the little known human reality of what it is like to be an African writer.

The Book in Africa C. Davis, D. Johnson, 2015-03-02 This volume presents new research and critical debates in African book history and brings together a range of disciplinary perspectives by leading scholars in the subject. It includes case studies from across Africa ranging from third century manuscript traditions to twenty first century internet communications.

Representing Africa in Children's Literature Vivian Yenika-Agbaw, 2007-12-13 Representing Africa in Children's Literature explores how African and Western authors portray youth in contemporary African societies critically examining the dominant images of Africa and Africans in books published between 1960 and 2005. The book focuses on contemporary children's and young adult literature set in Africa examining issues regarding colonialism the politics of representation and the challenges posed to both insiders and outsiders writing about Africa for children.

Africa Writes Back to Self Evan M. Mwangi, 2010-07-02 The profound effects of colonialism and its legacies on African cultures have led postcolonial scholars of recent African literature to characterize contemporary African novels as first and foremost responses to colonial domination by the West. In Africa Writes Back to Self Evan Maina Mwangi argues instead that the novels are primarily engaged in conversation with each other particularly over emergent gender issues such as the representation of homosexuality and the disenfranchisement of women by male dominated governments. He covers the work of canonical novelists Nadine Gordimer Chinua Achebe Ngu gi wa Thiong'o and J M Coetzee as well as popular writers such as Grace Ogot David Maillu Promise Okekwe and Rebeka Njau Mwangi examines the novels self reflexive fictional strategies and their potential to refigure the dynamics of gender and sexuality in Africa and demote the West as the reference point for cultures of the Global South.

Ending British rule in Africa Carol Polsgrove, 2017-03-01 On the eve of World War II a small impoverished group of Africans and West Indians in London dared to imagine the unimaginable the end of British rule in Africa In books pamphlets and periodicals they launched an anti colonial campaign that used publishing as a pathway to liberation West Indians George Padmore C L R James and Ras Makonnen Kenya s Jomo Kenyatta and Sierra Leone s I T A Wallace Johnson made their point that colonial rule was oppressive and inconsistent with the democratic ideals Britain claimed at home Ending British Rule in Africa draws on previously unexplored manuscript and archival collections to trace the development of this publishing community from its origins in George Padmore s American and Comintern years through the independence of Ghana in the 1957 This original study will be of interest to scholars and general readers interested in social movements diaspora studies empire and African history publishing history literary history and cultural studies Pandemic Genres Neville Wallace Hoad,2025-02-04 A free ebook version of this title is available through Luminos University of California Press s Open Access publishing program Visit www.luminosoa.org to learn more As HIV AIDS emerged as a public health crisis of significant proportions across sub Saharan Africa it became the subject of local and international interest that was at once prurient benevolent and interventionist Meanwhile the experience of Africans living with HIV AIDS became an object of aesthetic representation in multiple genres produced by Africans themselves These cultural representations engaged public discourse the public policy pronouncements of officials of postcolonial states an emerging global NGO speak and journalism In Pandemic Genres Neville Hoad investigates how cultural production novels poems films around the pandemic supplemented public discourse He shows that the long historical imaginaries of race empire and sex in Botswana Kenya and South Africa underwrote all attempts to bring the pandemic into public representation Attention to genres that stage themselves as imaginary particularly on the terrain of feeling may forecast possibilities for new figurations ALA Bulletin African Literature Association,2001
