Organ Transplantation

David Reardon

Transcendentalism is a movement in American literature and thought that emerged in the mid-nineteenth century. It was a response to the Enlightenment and the Industrial Revolution, which had brought about a new way of thinking and a new way of life. Transcendentalism was a form of idealism that emphasized the importance of the individual and the natural world. It was a movement that sought to transcend the limitations of the material world and to reach a higher, more spiritual plane of existence.

Transcendentalism was a movement that was born in the United States. It was a movement that was born in a time of great change and uncertainty. It was a movement that was born in a time when the United States was a young nation, and when the people were seeking a new identity and a new purpose. Transcendentalism was a movement that was born in a time when the United States was a nation of immigrants, and when the people were seeking a new home and a new life.
