Organic Chemistry Of Biological Compounds Foundations Of Modern Biochemistry Series:

Organic Chemistry of Biological Compounds Robert Barker, 1971 The science of biochemistry seeks to answer these three basic questions What is the nature of the molecules and structures found in living cells What is the biological function of these molecules and structures How are they synthesized and broken down in the cell This book deals with the first question related to the qualitative and quantitative characterization of the biochemical world and to the methods available for structural analysis National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1971 First multi

The only facts are the experimental data the interpretation of this data into models is only convincing to the extent that it makes logical sense to the individual examining it Since both space and common sense prohibits a continuous reiteration of this statement throughout the book be prepared to encounter some models and hypotheses which are based on sound experimental evidence as well as some which have no experimental basis at all In neither case are they facts but in either case they represent ideas which can be subjected to further experimental tests If the book helps to sharpen this critical evaluation of both ideas and the experimental test of the hypotheses one of its major purposes has been fulfilled
