Non-Formal Education Alan Rogers,2007-03-06 The Comparative Education Research Centre CERC at the University of Hong Kong is proud and privileged to present this book in its series CERC Studies in Comparative Education Alan Rogers is a distinguished figure in the field of non formal education and brings to this volume more than three decades of experience The book is a masterly account which will be seen as a milestone in the literature It is based on the one hand on an exhaustive review of the literature and on the other hand on extensive practical experience in all parts of the world It is a truly comparative work which fits admirably into the series Much of the thrust of Rogers work is an analysis not only of the significance of non formal education but also of the reasons for changing fashions in the development community Confronting a major question at the outset Rogers ask why the terminology of non formal education which was so much in vogue in the 1970s and 1980s practically disappeared from the mainstream discourse in the 1990s and initial years of the present century Much of the book is therefore about paradigms in the domain of development studies and about the ways that fashions may gloss over substance

Education and Development James Lynch,1997-01-01 This text approaches the subject of education and development on the basis that free universal primary education is a human right which should be accorded to all children forthwith This must be provided as a package of benefits encompassing universal primary education basic health care and adequate nutrition The analysis allows for the fact that policies for education are also subject to the influence of broader social philosophies and epistemologies than those solely of the educational system

Journal of Literacy and Adult Education ,2007      Hidden Literacies Alan Rogers,2002 This booklet presents a summary of contemporary understandings of adult literacy in the context of development It suggests that literacy is best seen as one of a number of different means of communications rather than a single essential basic skill that learning literacy is not essential to development many non literate persons are already fully engaged in development activities that the issue of access to literacy skills may be more important than the universal development of such skills that most adult literacy learning programs have failed to help the participants to use these skills in their everyday lives and that post literacy seems to be most effective when seen as a separate program of assistance like extension for adults to use their everyday literacies outside of the classroom 28 references Author YLB Boletin Internacional de Bibliografia Sobre Educacion,1999 Subject
