The Archaeology of Contact in Settler Societies Tim Murray, 2004-10-14 Several decades of research into the archaeology of contact in North America have laid the foundations for the global exploration of the archaeology of European colonization. It is significant however that archaeologists unlike historians and geographers have yet to develop a global account of contact and its consequences. This edited work presents case studies from nations developed from British settlement so as to allow historical archaeologists to examine differences and similarities between the histories of modern colonial societies world wide. Written by an international team of experts the work shows that historical archaeologies can assume marvellously different and suggestive forms when examined from the periphery. Furthermore the imperatives of the periphery could result in different perspectives on North American and European archaeological contexts. The work also examines the role of a global vision of the historical archaeology of colonialism in providing a new basis for the evolution of the nation.

Blood, Bones and Spirit Heather McDonald, 2001 In this fascinating and beautifully written book Heather McDonald examines Aboriginal people's experiences of colonialism and post colonialism in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Blood, Bones and Spirit analyses how Aboriginal people have appropriated Biblical stories of land inheritance, expansion and loss in order to make sense of their own dispossession. It investigates the embodiment of Christianity by Aboriginal people through their appropriation of Christ's body, his blood, bones and spirit in order to replenish and heal their own colonised bodies. Indeed this local study of Christianisation in a small East Kimberley town presents a challenge to the very history and philosophy of Western religion. Heather McDonald spreads out before the reader various aspects of Aboriginal Christianity, the way Aborigines have assimilated Christian stories to make sense of their history and their relationships with the dominant society, their understanding of what it means to be Christian, their church activities and their conflicting interpretations of the Christian way of life. Aboriginal Christians are repossessing the land and reclaiming a traditional earth bound world immanent spirituality. These Aboriginal understandings of colonisation including missionisation and Aboriginal ways of interpreting and understanding Christianity offer a unique contribution to the reconciliation process.

'Every Mother's Son is Guilty' Chris Owen, 2016 This is a marvellous contribution by Chris Owen to the understanding of the role the Western Australian police force played in the colonial expansion into the Kimberley district of Western Australia. Senator Patrick Dodson Yawuru Elder Chris Owen provides a compelling account of policing in the Kimberley district from 1882 when police were established in the district until 1905 when Dr Walter Roth's controversial Royal Commission into the treatment of Aboriginal people was released. Owen's achievement is to take elements of all the pre existing historiography and test them against a rigorous archival investigation. In doing so a fuller understanding of the complex social, economic and political changes occurring in Western Australia during the period are exposed. The policing of Aboriginal people changed from one of protection under law to one of punishment and control. The subsequent violence of colonial settlement and the associated policing and criminal justice system that developed often of questionable legality was what Royal Commissioner Roth termed a brutal and outrageous state of affairs Every Mother's Son is Guilty is a significant contribution to Australian and colonial criminal justice history Subject History Aboriginal Studies Criminal Justice policing Processes of Language Contact Jeff Siegel,2000 Aboriginal History ,2002 Parliamentary Debates Western Australia.
