Contingency approach	Systems management
It emphasizes the impact of environment on organizational design and managerial style.	The emphasis is on interdependence and interaction among sub-systems.
The focus is on external environment of the organization.	The focus is on the internal environment and sub-systems of the organization.
Each organization is taken as unique entity. Different organizations have different nature and face different situations.	It treats all organizations alike and the background of the organization is not taken into account.
The impact of the environment on organization structure and managerial style is the major concern of contingency approach.	The organization interacts with the environment and adjusts as per the changes.
It suggests practical solutions to organizational problems.	It provides a theoretical model of understanding the organization and its sub-systems.
It rejects the blind application of classical principles of management.	It is silent on the validity of classical principles of management.
